Medical Society Head Brands Proposal Menace to Public Health of State

Declaring the proposed initiative chiropractic bill a menace to the public health of Ohio, Dr. James W. McMurray, president of the Marion County Medical Society in a statement today urged a "no" vote on the measure at the election Nov. 8.

Dr. McMurray's statement comes as the first step in an aggressive fight being staged by the local medical society against the proposal. The Marion County organization recently declared itself against the measure and has launched a battle to defeat it in this county.

"There are about 150,000 cases of communicable and infectious diseases reported to public health authorities in Ohio during the normal year," Dr. McMurray points out in his statement. "Nearly two thirds of these cases are diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever and whooping cough. Under the proposed initiative bill, if enacted, chiropractors

ZACHMAN HOME SCENE OF HALLOWE'EN AFFAIR

Wadon, Oct. 21—Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Zachman entertained with a Halloween party. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Seiter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Basser, Mr. and Mrs. George Schweinfurth, the Misses Beulah Basser, Emma Rider, Edna Robinson, Catherine Smith, Edw. Schweinfurth, Anna Mae Randall, Florence Klingel, Rhoda Keyson and Messrs. Thomas Hobson, Milton Smith, Howard Angelsen, Raymond Seiter, Harry Seiter, Harold Zachman. Miss Basser won a prize for the best masked lady. Milton Smith won honors for the most comical. The time was spent with music, games and various contests. A lunch closed the festivities.

NEW FORD AUTO NOT O K FOR PRODUCTION

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21—The new Ford car, in its experimental stage, has been approved by Henry Ford, but it has not been O. K'd for production, since Ford is reserving decision on several minor parts, according to an official statement today from the Ford Motor Co.

Officials said Henry Ford was not at the new assembly plant Thursday, as stated in an article in a New York magazine, announcing the "official" turning out of the new Ford car.

Consensus isn't much better than out-right immaturity.

THIRD CAMPUS PARTY PLANNED

New Political Faction To Be Organized Among Ohio State Students

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University
Columbus, Oct. 21—A third political faction, to be composed of many independent campus organizations in addition to fraternities, will probably come into being with the annual class elections at Ohio State University, this week.

The new faction will be known as the "Big Fifteen" owing to the fact that 15 of the larger fraternities besides the organizations which are not battling the other parties, will be banded together in support of one platform.

Campus politics plays a very important part in naming class officials at Ohio State University, as the school is too large for one person to be personally acquainted with a sufficient number of students to elect him to an office.

Two large political factions, namely the "Big Four" and the "Big Ten," have had complete control of the election of campus officers for a number of years. Candidates have already been placed in the race for the offices this fall by the two major factions.

Realize Need
Campus leaders, not affiliated with either the "Big Four" or the "Big Ten," realized the need for another faction following the elections, last fall. At that time two fraternities, Delta Upsilon and Phi Delta Theta, furnished all four of the class presidents. The remaining officers elected were also members of organizations in the two political factions.

In spite of the fact that the 11 fraternities which comprise the "Big Four" and the "Big Ten" factions are probably the best known on Ohio State campus, their representation is scarcely one-tenth of the number of campus organizations. Leaders of the proposed faction declare.

Out for Office
Although no official announcement has been made of the third party on the Ohio State campus, one candidate not backed by either of the two major parties, has taken out a petition for the office of senior president. Political leaders of the campus believe that the candidate will be supported by the new political division.

Election of officers will be held at the university first of next week. Results will be established at various points of the university campus and voting resembling that of a small city will take place. Candidates who take out the petition for office will be placed on the ballot if the candidate obtains more than 75 signatures who will support him.

GRANGE MEETING

O. S. U. Soil Truck To Visit Green Camp Nov. 8

Green Camp, Oct. 21—The petition of Mrs. Julius Kreglow for membership was voted upon and the obligation given at the regular meeting of the Mt. Olive Grange, Thursday night. Julius Kreglow, Smith-Hughes teacher, announced that the Ohio State University soil truck would be in this community Nov. 8 and anyone wishing soil tested may submit not more than two samples. Mr. Kreglow also announced that arrangements were under way for holding a community fair at the school building Nov. 11 and 12. A Halloween social and entertainment will be held at the grange hall, Monday night, Oct. 31. During the social hour a musical contest was enjoyed.

Friday night the following members motored to Kenton where they received the sixth degree: Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harroff, Mrs. H. B. Schweinfurth, Miss Eva Dill Schweinfurth, Mrs. Belle Clay, Mrs. C. A. Wanserbeck, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lauer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clay, Robert Unenpher and Harry Drever.

"Judge" published in 1900, when Bryan was making his second try for the presidency against McKinley, who was running for his second term.

Opposed to Bryan "Judge" was unequivocally opposed to Bryan and throughout all of its issues urged re-election of McKinley on the plea for "Four More Years of the Pull Dinner Pail."

The Pan-American Exposition was in progress at Buffalo during the time covered by several issues of "Judge," and one first page cartoon shows "Judge" after being booted off the train at the exposition city with a caption reading "Let Me Off at Buffalo."

This was the title of a song which became tremendously popular throughout the country at that time.

"Que-langed," automobiles, pictured in advertisements and in extensive articles in the "Scientific American," were described as being models of motor car construction and engineering. It exhibited now they would scarcely be recognized as automobiles.

Another advertisement urges everybody to read "The 1000 Girl," a novel which doubtless pictured the corset and gaily attired flapper of that period as being unduly spirited and frivolous.

The magazines are the property of Mrs. J. H. Vaughan, 525 N. State-st.

15-Year-Old Youth Waits Nine Years to Even Score, Court Hearing Reveals

THE story of how a 15-year-old Marion boy more than evened up his score with an adversary after waiting nine years for the opportunity was disclosed in juvenile court recently when the two youths were brought before Judge L. B. McNeal for a final settlement of their differences.

The story was told in court after the mother of one of the rivals called on the judge and reported that her son, 17 years old, had gone down in defeat in a fist fight with the other boy. She stated that a blow received by her offspring had opened a gash in his face which required surgical attention, several stitches being necessary to close up the wound.

All of which sounded rather serious, so the judge called in the other youthful feudist.

From the conqueror came a most unusual story. He said that nine years ago, when he was six years of age, he was given a severe beating by the other youngster, then eight years old.

"He was too much for me then so I made up my mind I would wait until I became big and strong enough to get even," the boy stated.

Meets Old Enemy

His chance came several days ago when he met his foe after the lapse of nine years. The two were riding bicycles and there was a collision. "He told me to beat it and I said I'd not 'run down the alley' to get away from any one," the 15-year-old battler informed the court.

"Oh, then you are willing to fight?" the older boy suggested, menacingly.

"I certainly am," the 15-year-old lad announced, whereupon one blow was struck and it came from the lad who had been waiting nine years for vengeance.

His adversary went down and was neither able nor anxious to continue the argument, so the court was informed.

The conference in court ended by Judge McNeal admonishing the youthful warriors to bring their feud to a close. While he has their promise to maintain permanent peace, the court usually regards the promise as an absolute guarantee.

Marie Trying to Effect Reconciliation Between Carol, Wife Experts Suggest Better Route for Ocean Hops.

PRINCE GIVES UP LUPOESCU

Will Not Stand in Way of His Return to Throne

Oct. 24.—Queen Marie is now reported as striving to effect a reconciliation between Prince Carol and his wife, Princess Lilian.

The queen is said in reports from Bucharest to be striving to arrange a meeting between the estranged pair in Florence.

Oct. 24.—Mme. Magda Lupescu, the half-bred Roumanian for whom Prince Carol sacrificed his rights as a monarch, has elected to put an end to her liaison with the prince in order that he may be in a more favorable position to win restoration to his rights as head of the Roumanian House of Hohenzollern.

Prince Carol and Madame Lupescu have been spending their last week-end at Madame Lupescu's country estate, where she is said to be deliberating her position, and after that she will assume the role of a "camouflete" and send Prince Carol back to Paris to live alone in exile.

Madame Lupescu has decided upon a permanent separation because she has come to a realization that Prince Carol's love for her stands as the principal obstacle in his way back to the throne.

Prince Carol returns to his Neuchâtel estate this week to await the action of the Romanian government. He is expected to remain in Roumania, and Prince Carol is expected to remain in Roumania, and Prince Carol is expected to remain in Roumania.

How long or how complete the separation will be remains a question for the future to answer. Although Prince Carol has agreed to the separation he informed the International News Service today that he will assume a passive attitude and will not take leading part in the movement of the Roumanian Peasants' Party for restoration. He is merely following the advice of friends that he place himself in a position where his political opinions cannot say that his continuing association with Madame Lupescu is a disgrace to the Roumanian royal family.

Prince Carol said independently, "I am not a plotter."

Prince Carol's closest friend and adviser, who has been sharing his isolation at Madame Lupescu's villa, leaves tonight for Bucharest but asked that his identity be undisclosed.

"I am not connected with the Roumanian Peasants' Party, but I am allied with all the Roumanians who want Prince Carol for king," said this friend.

Prince Carol's loyalty to Madame Lupescu was the most difficult thing to do for him, and now he has decided to leave her. Prince Carol's loyalty to Madame Lupescu was the most difficult thing to do for him, and now he has decided to leave her.

It isn't generally known that Graham McNamee, famous radio announcer, is also a singer, but Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, opera and concert singer, at a "reunion" with McNamee in Cleveland, recalled that his first appearance was with her as an assisting artist in New York 16 years ago, when he was 22. ## Four Harding High Youths Select Ann Arbor Bastille As Final Lodging Resort

Warm Hand of Law Extended in Friendly Fashion to Marion Quartet, Which Finds Itself "Outside, Looking In" on Dedication Eve

Of all the hostilities in the world, the most probable to do more harm to "select" their guests than any other. Each one is hand picked by an experienced copper.

But, occasionally the tables are turned and the "guests" in picking out their sleeping places for the night in the list of prospective shelters. Such was the case last Friday night when four Marion boys, students of Harding High School, found not even standing room in Ann Arbor, Mich., hotels, private homes, and fraternity houses.

The boys had fond desires of seeing the Ohio State-Michigan football game the next day and realized the necessity of getting a little shut-eye to stand off the strenuous day ahead. The park benches having been taken for the winter there was nothing left for the resourceful youths to do but apply for lodging at the city jail.

The warm hand of the law was extended to them in true brotherhood of man fashion, a burly sergeant intimating that he would rather have the boys inside where he could watch them, anyway. A few minutes later the boys were busy engaged in a poker game in the basement of the city jail. But realizing that it would be very discourteous to gamble there, matches were substituted for money. All went well until the sergeant came down and cleaned the house.

After awhile the boys dropped off to sleep and in the meantime the day after the station came on duty. The day sergeant evidently had been a "topper" in the army for he suggested that the boys do kitchen police duty on the jail floor with a squad of brooms. They must get good seats for the game caused the boys "unwillingly" take French leave through a side window while the sergeant was in quest of brooms.

Officials at the school today refused to divulge the names of the students, fearing unfavorable publicity, they said.

EIGHT INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Six Automobiles Figure in Crashes on Marion-Delaware Road

Two automobiles were completely wrecked, four others badly damaged and eight persons injured in a series of traffic accidents which occurred on the Marion-Delaware road, between this city and Waldo, Saturday and Sunday night.

Three of the accidents occurred within a short space of time starting at about 10 o'clock Sunday night near the Marion County Children's home and the other happened Saturday night about 7 o'clock two miles north of Waldo.

The list of injured follows: F. R. Albert, R. F. D. No. 7, Marion; Harry Mosier, Silver and Senatesville; Clifford Miller, N. State st.; Mrs. Florence Crowl, N. State st.; Mrs. Leola Weir and son, John Robert Weir, S. W. Stump and Miss Pauline Kennedy, addresses given as R. F. D. No. 1, Martel.

All of the accident victims sustained bruises and lacerations about their heads or bodies. None are in serious condition, according to reports today.

Wrecker in Collision
Mosier, Clifford Miller, Mrs. Crowl and the two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Crowl were riding in Mosier's Ford touring car, which was completely demolished when it collided with the Albert Bros. wrecking car, which had been called out to get a machine which had been ditched in another collision.

Escape of occupants of the Mosier car with only bruises and cuts was miraculous, witnesses state. The Crowl baby was thrown into the roadway and was picked up uninjured.

The Albert wrecking car went into the ditch, its front end crushed in by force of the collision. F. R. Albert sustained a serious cut in his right arm and was taken to the City Hospital for treatment. Mosier's injuries were also dressed at the hospital.

Cars Go In Ditch
The first of the series of accidents occurred a short distance south of the children's home when a Studebaker sedan driven by Charles Klein, Bucyrus, slipped on an Oakland touring car driven by M. L. Kerslaw of Fostoria. Both machines went into the ditch with their front ends badly damaged.

A call was sent to the Albert Bros. garage on N. State and the wrecking car responded. After towing the Kerslaw machine to the garage, the wrecking car was returning to get the Klein machine when the collision with the Mosier machine occurred.

The Klein car was later taken to Bucyrus.

The Ford touring car of Fred J. Swisher was completely wrecked in a collision with another machine south of the children's home. Swisher and several other men in his car were injured. His machine was taken to the Gibson & Gano garage and the other car went on its. The identity of its occupants could not be learned.

Taken to Physician
The accident north of Waldo Saturday night occurred when a machine going south attempted to pass a car driven by S. W. Stump, of near Martel, sending the Stump car into the ditch. Stump and his passengers, Mrs. Leola Weir, son John Robert Weir, and Miss Pauline Kennedy were taken to the office of Dr. B. D. Osborn in Waldo, where their injuries were dressed.

Mrs. Weir's right arm was seriously cut, her son's head was bruised and lacerated, and Stump and Miss Kennedy suffered severe cuts and bruises on the head.

Members of the party were on their way to Delaware in company with friends in another machine. Following treatment of their injuries, the accident victims continued the trip to Delaware, their machine not being badly damaged.

Sheriff James A. Deal and deputies were summoned to the scene of Sunday night's accidents and were kept busy for more than an hour directing traffic which became confused and congested when hundreds of machines stopped along the roadway.

Three-Jump Journey Recommended by Hydrographic Fraternity

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—"Great Circles" are short cuts, from point to point on the globe.

A sailor's inclination usually is to follow the "great circle" route on a voyage, simply because, like most of us, he assumes that the shortest way anywhere must be the best way.

If short cuts are tempting to a surface sailor, how much more tempting must they be to an aviator?

We may take it for granted that almost any aviator will consider himself well able to follow any "great circle," which a surface sailor is able to follow—not to mention a great many "great circles" that the surface sailor can't follow.

Undoubtedly the most generally traveled by surface ships—of these routes is the recognized lane between New York City and the ports of northern France and southern England.

Shortest Cut
It's the shortest cut, which is why surface ships, if in a hurry, as big liners always are, take it. For the same reason, most of our transatlantic aviators also have chosen it, convinced that any route which is better for a surface vessel will be a still better route for their aerial craft.

That, in the opinion of officials of the naval hydrographic office, is one of the reasons why transoceanic flying has been marked by so many disasters in the last season.

The hydrographic experts, who are also specialists in meteorology, do not, indeed, consider the route across the Newfoundland Banks, on the way between New York and the English channel, the worst to be found on earth, but they do pronounce it a bad one for aviation—especially westward bound aviation—and attribute its large proportion of fatalities to the fact that it is most frequented.

Miss Ruth Elder, flying straight out to sea, avoiding the shorter "great circle" route, went approximately 3,000 miles before being forced down.

All Ocean Airs
Hawaiian flying, as the hydrographic point out, has likewise claimed its victims. Therefore, presumably, the only reason that the eastbound, in such waters has not been more frequent, may be a surprise, is that not so many have braved them.

The hydrographic fraternity incline to discount the theory that the Newfoundland Banks constitute a much, if any more serious peril to the airman than any other part of the North Atlantic lane between the continents.

The banks, to be sure, have long been recognized as dangerous to surface shipping, by reason of the heavy fog which covers them much of the year, due to the atmospheric effect produced by the meeting there of the arctic waters of the Labrador current and the warmer flow of the Gulf stream, and to the icebergs swept by the former tide into the transatlantic lane from the Greenland coast.

Fog Greater Menace
In the haze of which one claimed the Titanic in these very waters—the hydrographic authorities see no especial danger to the air voyager. The fog—responsible for many a surface collision—is spoken of as a much more serious menace to him.

The great objection, however, which meteorologists raise to the route is its susceptibility to severe storms at all seasons.

The prevailing winds, strongly to the eastward, may be a help to the east-bound flyer, as to Lindbergh and Chamberlin, as long as they blow in moderation, but often attain a velocity far past the point of safety—to say nothing of occasional violent local flurries and cross currents, sufficient to try the strength of the stoutest plane and the skill of the most capable hand at the control stick.

Bad Headwinds
To travelers bound to the westward, these head winds—and they are seldom otherwise—naturally are a continual difficulty and threat, both relating to speed and tending to drive a plane to the northward, where the aerial drift is more moderate but heavy sleet storms, persistently, loading down the machine and robbing it of buoyancy by affecting the wing chamber.

The northern route, in short, is emphatically on the hydrographic office's bad book for aviators.

As an alternative, for transatlantic flying, the hydrographic experts recommend a three-jump journey, from New York, Newport News or Savannah, to Bermuda, from Bermuda to the Azores, and from the Azores to Lisbon, Bristol or some neighboring European coast point.

The distance is a little greater—Lindbergh's New York-Paris flight was of 3,600 land miles, as compared with 753 from Newport News to Bermuda, 2,001 from Bermuda to the Azores, and 1,055 from the Azores to Lisbon, or 5,570 altogether—but the trip is through a series of zones of almost uniformly fair weather at all seasons.

Even Gain Time
The navy, indeed, has urged this course upon United States shipping board surface freighters and other vessels which were not driven by the demand for speed to keep to the more northerly lane, and in many instances the result has actually been an economy in time, favorable weather conditions more than offsetting the comparatively few additional miles of attenuating travel.

Navy authorities lay, too, the utmost stress upon the importance of highly skilled navigators, if aerial transoceanic flying is to be made safe and successful.

A tip-top navigator is declared to be far more vitally necessary on board a plane than a surface vessel, since the former must work at maximum speed and generally never has an opportunity to correct an error.

Not "Luck"
The navy is extremely chary of connecting the word "luck" with the performance of Lindbergh and Chamberlin, both of whom are mentioned in terms of the warmest admiration. Nevertheless, it is recalled that Lindbergh, by his own showing, was blown a long distance to the southward of his course, without being aware of it, and then, by a pure whim of the elements, was blown a corresponding distance back to the northward, while Chamberlin corrected a serious mistake in his calculations by descending low enough to get a new reckoning from a surface vessel.

"Extremely ingenious, but not exactly dependable navigation" is the navy folk express it.

Navy's Advice
To sum up, the navy's prescription for successful transoceanic aviation, consists of:

1. The use, exclusively, of seaplanes—the Rodgers plane's performance, on the Pacific flight, is cited in illustration of this type of craft's serviceability, even in a high sea, in the event of a forced descent into the ocean.

2. Reliance only upon skilled navigation.

3. A choice of routes thoroughly known to and recommended by the naval hydrographic office.

It is Pacific flight, is cited in illustration of this type of craft's serviceability, even in a high sea, in the event of a forced descent into the ocean.

POLITICAL JOKER IS SEEN IN RADIO LAW

Party with Biggest "War Chest" Probably Will Monopolize "Air"

Washington, Oct. 24.—The political party with the biggest "war chest" probably will monopolize the air during the 1928 presidential campaign, regardless of a provision in the federal radio law, which ostensibly was aimed to insure equal broadcasting privileges for all candidates.

Considering the problem of writing regulations for section 18 of the law—the political equality provision—the federal radio commission today found "the joker."

If any station permits the use of its broadcasting facilities for a candidate, "shall afford equal opportunities to all other candidates for that office," section 18 reads.

However, there is nothing in the law to prevent the Republican or the Democratic National Committee, or other organizations, from buying all the radio facilities they want or can afford, for the broadcasting of political propaganda on behalf of any candidate.

An individual who is not up for office, also may present the views of candidates or arguments in their behalf, and the broadcasting station from which the information is transmitted is apparently under no obligation to give the adherents of opposing candidates the right to use its facilities, in the opinion of legal experts.

DAILY TESTED RECIPE

POOR MAN'S PUDDING
Over the bottom of a baking dish scatter one-half cup of well-washed rice, one-half cup sugar, a pinch of salt and a sprinkling of nutmeg. Pour over it one quart milk. Bake in a medium oven an hour and a half. Do not stir at all. The time of baking may vary but when the rice shows above the milk it is done. If the oven is too hot the milk evaporates and the pudding becomes too stiff. To be eaten either hot or cold.

OFFICER LOCKED IN BY IRATE SALESMAN

Constable Is Released from Garage When Police Break Down Door

Indignant because he had come to serve replies papers on the firm, Frank M. Paschall, former electrical supply man, and employed as a salesman at the Klingbeil Motor Sales office on S. Prospect st., locked Constable Scott Bell in the building shortly before noon today and it was necessary for the police to break in a door before the officer could be released.

A warrant for the arrest of Paschall was filed by the constable on charges of resisting and obstructing an officer on duty in municipal court and a short time later, he was placed under arrest. He was released under a bond of $1,000 for his appearance in court later today.

According to the constable, he had come to the sales room to serve replies papers filed by the Justice & Parker Co., seeking to recover equipment, and as he walked into the repair room at the rear of the building, Paschall slipped out and locked the door. After vainly trying to get out, the police were notified and the door broken down.

A number of attachments have been filed against the sales company, which is managed by Herbert A. Huffman. Paschall is said to be financially interested in the company.

MOTHER OF MARION WOMAN IS KILLED

Mrs. J. J. Mayer Dies of Injuries in Upper Sandusky Auto Accident

Struck down while crossing N. Sandusky st. in Upper Sandusky shortly after 7 o'clock last night by an auto driven by Vernon Mealy, Port Clinton, Mrs. J. J. Mayer, 80, died at noon today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. David Schoenberger, in Upper Sandusky.

The driver of the car was absolved from all blame in connection with the accident.

The aged woman was attempting to cross the street in front of her daughter's home and it is thought that she became blinded by the headlights on the car which knocked her to the pavement inflicting head wounds and internal injuries. She died without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Mayer was formerly a resident of Wharton and had made her home with her daughter in Upper Sandusky only a short while. She is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. M. M. Miller, Kensington, Md., and Mrs. M. M. Miller, Philadelphia, and two sons, O. W. Mayer, of near Prospect, and Edward Mayer, Wharton. Her husband, John J. Mayer, preceded her in death about a year ago.

"I Find It Far Superior in Quality!"

The perpetual quest for beauty keeps many of the fair sex constantly "shopping around" for a personally satisfactory face powder. Beautiful Marie Hackett, of Brooklyn, New York, has found the exquisitely textured Black and White Face Powder exactly suited to her needs; and she delights in passing on the good news of her discovery:

"Black and White Face Powder is far superior in quality to others I have been using," says Marie Hackett. "And its most satisfactory in its effect on my skin. I am always recommending it to my friends."

You, too, will find real satisfaction when you feel the creamy touch of this dainty, flower-fragrant face powder and see the way it clings for hours, giving to your skin a new and appealing loveliness.

Black and White Beauty Creations are of a quality acceptable to those who seek the best, at prices within the reach of all—25c and 50c.

Since it has developed that the real name

you can hardly blame Eva Tanguay for divorc-

The owners of a half-million-dollar hair ruptcy as a result of the bob, but what is

Earl Carroll says that he believes that what he did was the only thing that he could do

A New York girl defrauded a department store out of $1,200 worth of merchandise, with the proceeds of which she planned to buy tomatoes for the graves of her mother and two sisters. It seems to us that that is carrying love of family a bit too far.

It was hardly good form for the Prince of Wales to have laughed, as he is reported to have done, when his riding master, Major General Sir John Vaughan was thrown the other day as his horse tripped in a rabbit hole, but there's no denying that it must have seemed funny to the prince to see the other fellow taking the tumble.

Exceeding by $50,029,031.49 the budget

New York City for 1928 is $24,922,381.49—more than one-third the entire federal revenue of Germany. Little wonder that some New Yorkers esteem the majority higher than the presidency!

José Elguero, chief editorial writer of the Excelsior of Mexico City, who is now at San Antonio, having been expelled from Mexico week before last, says that Calles has literally slain hundreds of innocent persons.
And yet Elguero was expelled instead of being shot? The two statements do not dovetail, unless Elguero is holding out that Calles slays
the innocent only.

The request of Lugaresi Vanzetti, that a religious ceremony be held over the ashes of her brother, was refused by Monsignor Travaglini, bishop of Cuneo, on the ground that Bartolomeo Vanzetti was an atheist and that his last words were "Long live anarchy." How different from the practice over here, notably in our second city, where the funerals of murderers, bandits, gangsters, run-runners and bootleggers have all the pomp of state ceremonies and are attended by state and city officials and occasionally by members of the bench and bar.

"Home, Sweet Home."

By a popular vote of 152 to fifty-three, the people of the little village of Southampton, on Long Island, have decided to buy the small cottage long held out to visitors as the inspiration of John Howard Payne's "Home, Sweet Home," and this, too, despite the strong probability that the claim that it once housed the composer is spurious.

During the campaign waged looking to the purchase of the cottage for $60,000, which was held a reasonable figure as the tract of ground and the cottage were considered worth $20,000 and the antiques of Payne's time which were gathered and placed therein were thought to be worth twice as much, it was pretty thoroughly demonstrated that Payne had never lived in the cottage and possibly didn't even know of it. There is a tradition that one of Payne's aunts lived across the way from it and that Payne lived for a time with her, but even this has not been established.

That the cottage in question was not Payne's inspiration is supported also by the attitude of the champions of the purchase. To prove that Payne never knew it as a home, their response was: "What of it? It's the kind of a cottage he had in mind. Scores of thousands have come to our village to visit it. It's the one asset of the village. Why, then, should not the village own it?"

And so the people of this little village will pay out $60,000 for the cottage which is attracting thousands to their municipality.

Here at home we have a wonderfully beautiful memorial being erected by the people of the nation to a former president. For the beautification of all the approaches to it, save one, provision has been made. The portion of the cost of the improvement of the exception which will fall upon the city is just half the cost of the "Home Sweet Home" cottage which Southampton has decided to pay by a three to one vote. The local memorial will be viewed by millions where the cottage is visited by tens of thousands.

At times, we feel that some of our people do not appreciate to the full what an asset the Harding memorial is to our city.

Visions of the Scientists.

We are told that, in the beginning, man was made out of dust. The thought may have appeared to many that there need not necessarily have been any material used, for the Power capable of producing the universe out of nothing could have produced man the same way. But we are told that dust was the material used, and the term "dust" may well have been used because of lack of a better term for the element or elements employed.

Well, the scientists are now talking about producing beings in much the same way, regulating personality by this or that chemical compound to cause their products to meet the specifications of the style of being desired.

This is not idle talk on our part; it is a matter seriously discussed at the world psychological symposium held at Wittenberg college down at Springfield last week, at which Dr.
Edwin S. Slosson, of Washington, envisioned a day when living beings may be artificially produced in a chemical laboratory.

"The chemist of the future will turn from his humble task of providing the conveniences of life, and gain control of life itself," the doctor told his hearers. He may mold stature and character as the sculptor his clay. He can turn his attention to the preparation of compounds that will contribute to human well-fare instead of woe, and stimulate virtues to supplant vices."

The doctor referred to the frogs produced by Jacques Loeb which had no father save a fatty acid and eluded the contention of the latter that artificial production of living beings from lifeless matter might some time be achieved in the laboratory, and he contended that, getting down to bed rock, the factors of heredity and the origin of species are chemical problems.

"What we value as individually—fascinating temperament, charms of vivacity, wit and sympathy"—said the doctor, "are all due to dentile harmonies, some of which are already known as chemical compounds. Courage is not a matter of 'sand,' but of sugar."

"Diabetic patients who are gripped with a form of fear from an overdose of insulin may have their courage immediately restored by sucking a lollipop. A variation of a few hundredths of one per cent. in the glucose of the blood may make the difference between courage and cowardice; may determine whether a man shall be shot as a slacker or medaled as a hero."

"Sex must be regarded as essentially a chemical affair which might be regulated, pressed, stimulated or reversed by minute amounts of certain definite compounds in the blood or food. Experimentation is already active in this field, and none can foretell how far it will lead. Problems of so-called 'race kettles' may be solved by the chemist."

"We already have proof that sex itself can be reversed in animals as high in the scale of life as a bird, as revealed by Dr. Crew, of Edinburgh, who observed the transformation of a hen into a cock, and by Oscar Riddle, of Carnegie station of experimental evolution, who reported the change of a female pigeon to a male."

"The visions of these scientists may be realized in time. We say 'may,' for we do not know one way or the other. What along many lines do we of today know of tomorrow?
They may come, we say, but the time of their coming is probably a long way off. We appreciate the scientific zeal to transform their visions into actualities, but it seems to us that while thus engaged they should center their endeavors upon the crying needs of today.
Just at present, there is no pressing need for more people. Scientists in other lines are claiming that we are doomed to have more one of these days, without artificial production, than the world can support. Anyway, the present is the vital proposition. If it's all the same to us, we hope our advanced chemists will lay off experimentation looking to chemically-made beings, if that form may be used, and devote at least the major part of their energies to the discovery of the chemical compounds which will eradicate vices and stimulate virtues, which will decrease human woe and add to human welfare."

To our way of thinking, there's a crying need of that kind of medicine for what's ailing the world.

The chairman of a citizen's committee named by Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, suggests that a great lighthouse to be built at the Calumet entrance to the deep water industrial harbor up there be named after His Honor. That's even more humorous than the suggestion of a Chicago paver that it be named after Mrs. O'Leary's famous cow.

A $100,000 damage suit against former Congressman John J. Gorman by the author of a history called pro-British by Gorman; an order by Chicago's mayor for a committee of one named by him to seize and publicly burn all pro-British books in the Chicago public library; the mayor's warning to Superintendent William McAndrew that, banned from the Chicago schools, no other city will want him, and the declaration of McAndrew's attorney that the "antics" of her school board are making Chicago the laughing stock of the world are the recent phases of Mayor Bill Hale Thompson's war against King George, which is getting funnier with each passing hour.

Vagrant Verse.

IN LATE AUTUMN.

I can not take this brownish golden rustling asters from this place.
I can not stoop and pick these last frail sprays
Of curled and tattered Queen Anne's lace.

This autumn roadside is so dusty now,
So dull of color and so dry,
These flowers its only solace while it waits
For killing frosts to stagger by.

One day a lonely woman, old and worn
With years of grief and poverty,
Offered the few last treasures of her youth
In humble gratitude to me.

They were a daisy shawl—this goldenrod;
A brooch set with glass amethysts—
These asters: like this Queen Anne's lace, a scent

Worn long ago at lovers' trysts,
I gave her thanks, but would not take her things,
And, oh, what peace suffused her face!

So having touched no last tired flower, I go,
Leaving that look upon this place,
—Violet Allen Story.

HIS MASTER'S VOICE!

Hobby for Serene Old Age.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Did you happen to see a dispatch printed in all the papers about a man who "retired" from business and returned to his old job after seventy days of "bedrest"?

For thirty years this man had been a member of the New York Stock exchange, sold his seat and determined to take it easy the rest of his life. But he couldn't stand idleness. He put up with it for ten weeks and then, unable to endure his new life, bought a seat on the exchange for $30,000 more than he got for his own.

"I don't know what to do," he said to a friend who was surprised to find him around Wall street when he was supposed to be out enjoying himself in the country.

To begin with, I would say in commenting on this case, I do not believe in retirement. It is better for everybody to stay in harness.

Unfortunately, however, it is not possible for everybody to do this. When old age approaches, the employer is likely to seek a new man. This causes sadness and even heart-breaking.

Only a little while ago I begged the employers of a man to permit him to round out an even fifty years of service. He looked like a man of fifty years, but he was only forty. He had been in the business for twenty years. But it was just as hard to quit at the end of fifty years as it seemed at forty-eight years and nine months.

Since the average person must retire some time he should be getting ready for it in advance. The trouble with too many men is that they have no actions, no hobbies, no outside interests. This is a great mistake.

My idea is that the man, even if he never expects to retire, should have some diversion. He can be interested in a non-selfish way in politics, in art, in stamp collecting, in books. It makes no difference what the diversion is, so long as there is one.

But this should not take the place of golf, walking, riding, or some other out-door sport. There should be the means of exercising, in addition to the diversion I have suggested.

Even now to think about what you will do when you "quit," I was "back home" a few weeks ago.
On "our" street lives a man who was a merchant in Detroit for years. He had made his plans to give up business at a certain age and go to this little town where he had purchased a modest home.
He is having the time of his life with his flowers and trees and attic.

This man prepared for his retirement. He planned it as he did his business. So when he did retire he went into something he had longed to do.

The late Mr. Henry Clay told me once made "Fortieth street the dividing line in his life."
That is, he put business aside when he crossed Fortieth street on his way home from his office. He did not permit himself to return to thoughts of business till he crossed Fortieth street next morning.

You can't retire unless you have something to retire to. If it may not suit that way.

Your health and happiness and long life depend upon how you spend your active days and also upon how you have prepared the way for retirement.

A P. R. Q.—I am a girl of thirteen, four feet ten and one-half inches tall. What should I weigh?
I weigh 111 pounds. Should I reduce?
A—You should weigh about 105 pounds. At your age a few pounds over should not be a source of worry. However, you could restrict your diet in regard to too many sweets and be sure to take lots of exercise daily. Copyright, 1927.

Editorial Comment.

PULPIT VAUDEVILLE IN ENGLAND, TOO.

The Canon of Canterbury, the Reverend Henry Bickersteth, of the Anglican church, has attracted the attention of all England by suggesting that movies be moved into the church on Sunday, presumably so that the movie crowds would either have to go to church or go without pictures.

The good canon's plan to put vaudeville and the like into the pulpit may be startlingly new in Great Britain. But it is old stuff in the United States.
Nearly every city in this country has seen one or more of its clergymen turn to spectacular stunts.
At one end of the continent we have our Albee Sample McElhenny; at the other end a New York preacher who is, or at least lately was, engaging bare-legged young women to do esthetic dances at his services.

And in between the two edges of the continent
we have a number of churches that stage everything from political speeches to old fiddlers' contests for the purpose of pepping things up—stunts designed to stimulate church attendance, thought not necessarily to inspire deep religious fervor.

But what good does all this do the church itself?
Rather, how can it help but do harm, instead of good, in the long run? Does not a church weaken itself when it does into the vaudeville business?

The well-meaning Canon of Canterbury, and all his prototypes in this country, seem to have overlooked the existence of a group of people, still forming a great minority of the population if not an actual majority, who look upon the church as a place where they may worship in an atmosphere of reverence and sanctity.—Minneapolis Journal.

CONTRIBUTING GUILT.

The supreme court of the United States opened the way for quite a new general departure in prohibition enforcement when it declined to review two Chicago cases in which cabaret owners that had furnished cracked ice, ginger ale and mineral water to patrons who intended to use the ingredients in consuming intoxicants, were convicted of abetting the violation of the dry law, and were punished by application of the padlock to their premises.
By refusing to take action, the supreme court in effect upheld the decision of the lower court and presumably recognized the acts of the cabaret owners as acts of conspiracy to break the law, though technically the convictions were based on the nuisance provisions of the Volstead statute.

The stand taken by the high tribunal is obviously sound and common sense. The pleas of the defendants that they stood on a level with a person who sells clothing of any other necessary equipment to a person charged with liquor law violation was quibbling, and was designed to be evasive. It was not intellectually honest. It was, however, typical of a good deal of so-called argument presented to courts in these days, and the action of the supreme court is generally wholesome because of the implied constraint it casts on that sort of tactics.—Detroit Free Press.

HUMAN NATURE AT THE WHEEL.

It is a sad but true commentary on human nature that when the conditions of our highways are most treacherous, traffic accidents are fewer. When the roads are free from rain, snow and slush, motorists grow careless and many accidents follow, but when motor travel is made precarious by slippery and drifted roads, drivers are made cautious, minimizing traffic accidents, although natural causes for accidents become greater.

Winter roads, affording uncertain traction, serve for the average motorist the same purpose as the warning signs erected at approaches to sharp curves and steep hills. These are the "slices" the motorist believes in and which prevent accidents. Another sign, but one that causes accidents, is the long stretch of straight and level highway which invites speed. Not only is this true in the country, but Columbus motorists, driving to and fro over our good streets, push the accelerator a bit farther on the straight way, and endanger not only their own lives, but the lives of pedestrians along their path.
It is where the going is the smoothest and clearest that the tramp on accelerators and cars test out their speed.—Columbus Dispatch.

Dinner Stories.

He had just been hit by a truck and was slowly regaining consciousness.
"Where am I?" he cried.
"You're injured in a street accident," replied some one, "but don't be alarmed, you will recover."

"This man on the ground cheered up immediately, despite his bruises.
"How much?" he asked.
A man whose whole life had been spent in active business passed to the spirit world. On arriving there he thought, "Now for some rest and perfect peace." After quite a short time a spirit tapped him on the shoulder and said:
"Excuse me, sir; you are wanted on the outboard."

"No," said the lady of the house sharply, "I don't want a thing."
"Tell that to you old man," retorted the surly peddler; "it will make a bigger hit with him than it does with me."

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Readers of this column—if any—were told the other day that a reasonable and loyal thing to believe that American teachers, whether in music or medicine, are sometimes as good as European. A reader recalls Charles Clark, who became a noted statesman and teacher of voice, both in America and Europe. In Paris he specialized in American students. He understood the English language and he understood Americans. Students seemed to think he was better than French teachers. And this young man, Charles Clark, used to be a clerk in a gilt mill in Van Wert, Ohio.

Much "antique" furniture is made in Grand Rapids. Worm holes can be shot in. And the interesting point is that much modern furniture is just as good or better than antique furniture. The cult of the old—old furniture, old world ideas, old world teachers —is a strong cult with loyal followers. Much of the value is unreal. It is "atmosphere."

Arthur Thomson, Oxford university automatist, wrote the "Outline of Science." He sometimes throws truth in hard rocks. They hurt.
Talking before the Royal academy in London
the other evening he said: "It is only conceit which makes mankind believe it has not descended from the ape." He even suggested that women are physically more like the ape than man. "Women's legs are usually shorter and her arms longer than man's," he said.
"Structural similarities are too great to be ignored." And as if he hadn't said enough—this really great scientist—he declared that until a baby can walk it resembles the ape in nearly every respect.

Man's vanity accounts for a lot. It makes him eagerly ready to believe in immortality—that he will live forever. Man feels so important that he loves to believe in his own in-destructibility.

Orators can get excited about the poor woman who have to work longer hours in factories and offices. Philosophers worry a lot about the problems of the business woman. But the women who have the hardest time are wives of workmen who spend more hours over the washbowl, the kitchen stove, and the baby's cradle than any stenographer ever spent at her desk.

And most wives get poor pay and little entertainment.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

WILLIAM HOWIE.

William Howie was born at Annapolis, Maryland, May 6, 1872. He has been with the United States geodetic survey since 1893, and has been in the field on coast and reconnaissance surveys in many states of the union, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and Alaska. He has been in charge of the division of geodesy since 1909. Howie served as a major of engineers during the World war, and has been delegate from the United States to many international scientific conferences.

Chief Howie wants the ocean bottom charted for the benefit of earthquake information.

"We could easily find out much about the oceans at a very small cost. We have the sounding which will furnish the depths of the water when it is used on a steamer that may be making twenty knots or more per hour.
If each of the navies of the world should send two or three destroyers, each equipped with modern apparatus, we could know the exact configuration of the ocean bottoms within a very few years."

"It is a remarkable fact that nearly all the great earthquakes occur under the oceans, near the edges of the continental shelves and in the great ocean depths. We need to have a large number of seismological stations which will record the time and the intensity of the earthquake shocks. From such records the exact location of the earthquake can be determined."

"Some of these days we shall have an earthquake map with dots of varying sizes or colors showing the earthquake locations and the intensities of the quakes. Just as now we have cyclone and hailstorm maps. All of these studies require the cooperation of men of different countries; the problem can not be solved by any one nation."

"Cooperation can only be obtained by having the men come together to talk over formally or informally the various problems before them. After the conferences, committees could be appointed which could set forth the various problems to be attacked and outline methods by which these problems may be solved."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 24.—Diary of a modern Perry: Up early to walk and a crochety lady looked at my face and said it was hers, stole a tavern to convince her I have owned him three years. Came a postcard with an autograph drawing from Ralph Barton in Paris.

After breakfast, E. J. Marshall, the race-man, called, and the finest figure of a man I know although nearing seventy. Also Sloane Simpson, a Rough Rider and friend of Roosevelt, and presented two interesting snapshots of the former president, taken in New Mexico.

All the afternoon at this and that and accomplishing nothing. So to call on Walter Howe and Verne Porter, who have become magazine publishers, but they were out. And to see H. T. Webster, the farmer, who has been for a long stay in England bicycling and glad to be home. Later to hear Ben Bernie and his excellent orchestra.

This is another story, culled from a page of Broadway, of the girl who tried and failed.
Her youthful beauty won her immediate place in the chorus about five years ago. She won the pace, but drew up short before the first count. Then she renounced Broadway and her comradeship and interested a benevolent gentleman in a new start in life. She quit liquor, cigarettes and late hours, studied voice and music. Two years were spent in cultural activity abroad and about a year ago she returned to Broadway—entirely changed. She was given a conspicuous part in a drama. The play was to continue without her. And she

T. M. C. Club Members Hold Halloween Party

Members of the T. M. C. Club were entertained at a Halloween masquerade party Friday night at the home of Miss Golda Harvey, Margat. Honors for the high score at eucbre were won by Miss Ruth Lashby and Miss Lorella Winter received the award in a contest.

Lunch was served. The next regular meeting of the club will be Nov. 3 at the home of Miss Louise Eddy, Fies-av.

Happily Tyme Club Have Halloween Party
Members of the Happily Tyme Club entertained at their annual Halloween party Saturday night at the J. N. Kern house, Chestnut-st. Guests, who numbered about 20, included members of the families of the club members. The time was spent with games, in the rooms decorated in keeping with the season and decorations suggestive of Halloween were used for the lunch.

Halloween Party at Myers Home

Mrs. Bertram Myers was hostess at a Halloween party at her home, 229 Thew-av, Friday night, in a company of 20 boys, the event honoring her sons, Richard, Frederick and Donald. Games and contests made up the program of entertainment and Ernest McCoy won first honors in a game contest.

The home was attractively decorated in keeping with the Halloween season.

Birthday Party for Ted Freicks, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Freicks entertained the boys of the Fifth Grade, St. Mary's Parochial School, Saturday afternoon at their home, 975 E. Center-st., honoring the tenth birthday anniversary of their son, Ted, Jr. The children enjoyed games in rooms attractively decorated in keeping with the Halloween season. A birthday cake, with lighted candles centered the table for a birthday luncheon and appointments were suggestive of the season.

Members of the Progressive Class of Ashbury M. E. Church were entertained at a Halloween party Saturday night at the William M. Warner home, west of the city. The time was spent socially and with games and music. Refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Francis Warner, Miss Mae France and Miss Dorothy Warner.

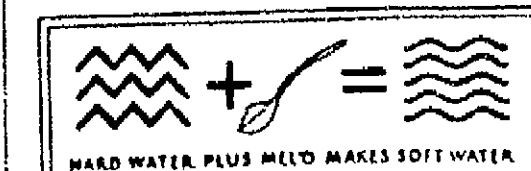

Others present were the Misses Lucille Hazel, Isabelle and Ruth Smith, Gladys Davis, Garnet and Mildred Franer, Audrey Hickman, Helen Patten, Esther Grubbaugh, Edythe and Mae Gustin, Ruth Gallimore, Mary Campbell, Pauline Seaborn, and Mary Keener, and Kenneth Seckle, Ralph and Raymond Bentley, Floyd Von Meier, William Gustin, Francis Warner, Clarke Byrd, John Warner, Chester Seckle, Elmer France, Essie Morgan, Leo Berry and Donald Patten.

Miss Willcox, formerly at Barton Beauty Salon, is now located at Williams Beauty Parlor, 126 W. Center-av.

Prevents dishpan's dirty ring

When you wash dishes in hard water, there is always a scum around the dishpan. It is dirty and hard to get off. But wash dishes in soft water... no scum and no dirty ring.

Why? The hardness in hard water combines with the soap and makes the scum. But use Melo to soften the water and scum can't form. Melo makes water as soft as rain water. It saves hands. It makes dishes sparkle. Get it at your grocer's.

THE ETERNAL VAMP

VERILY, my Daughter, it hath come to pass that the world is full of vamps! Yea, they come in seven-and-fifty varieties and the name of their methods is legion.

Behold, there is the subtle and sinuous vamp—and there is the baby-vamp.

There is the vamp that vampeth with her wits, the vamp that vampeth with her eyes, and the vamp that vampeth with duplex and sex-appeal.

There is the sympathetic vamp whose business is the understanding of misunderstood husbands—and the tender vamp whose mission is the consoling of neglected husbands.

There is the vamp that feedeth men flattery and hyacinths for their starved souls. And the vamp that feedeth them good dinners and winneth them away from delicious wives.

There is the vamp that vampeth in order to WIN—and the vamp that vampeth for the pure joy of vamping; even as the feline man that lisheth for the joy of fishing, nor careth whether or not he maketh a "catch."

And the last of these is the most deadly to men and the most dangerous to women.

For a woman that playeth the love-game in order to WIN, may be one woman's enemy and one man's Waterloo; but a woman that playeth only to PLAY, is every woman's enemy and every man's menace.

Behold, her hand is steady and her eye unerring. Her words are of honey and her voice is sweeter than the dove's; but the look in her eye is inscrutable.

She goeth softly, as the cat by night, that she may not afflict her victim and not as the modern Diana with the sounding of horns and trumpets.

Her looks are scented with frankincense and myrrh, and all her ways are full of modesty and softness and femininity.

She is more insidious than old wine and more heady than a strong drink before breakfast.

And lo, every man is as the foolish fish upon her hook which she "playeth" with skill and coolness and fincheth aside at the finish.

Go to, Every woman thinketh herself a "vamp" in her own heart; yet, beside one of THESE, all others are but amateurs and imitations, more harmless than a drink of buttermilk!

For, SHE is the Eternal Vamp!

RALLY DAY IS OBSERVED

BY MARION CHURCHES

With Rev. Edwin G. Frye, D. D., Cleveland, as speaker, rally day was observed yesterday in all departments of Calvary Evangelical Church and Sunday School. At a combined service of the church and Sunday School, in the morning, Reverend Frye discussed "The Life of the Sunday School," while at the night service his talk was on the theme, "Consecrated Life." At the rally service of the young people of the church he was heard in a talk on "Values." Other features of the services were the special music numbers, both instrumental and vocal. There was good attendance at every service.

Daily day was also observed at First United Brethren Church, there having been good attendance at every service throughout the day. A feature of the day's observance was the splendid talk given by John H. Clark, prominent local attorney, at the morning session.

Sally's Shoulders

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LIPS," "THE HEARTWOOD CASE"

CHAPTER XXV

It was past ten that night. Sally had everything in readiness for her father's coming. She had bathed and changed into a dress of gold and blue, and had her hair styled in the room that once belonged to Beau, and stowed away in the room that she and her father shared for so many years. There was a clean linen on the bed, and her father was to sleep, and a chamber and ash-tray on the table.

In her own small way, Sally prepared a welcome for him. Mrs. Jerome, too, had made preparations for his coming. She had changed her plentiful hair and put on a dress of gray silk.

"It's five years old, but your father never seen it," she whispered, while she looked her into it. "Dear me, I hope he won't find me too changed."

"So far as that goes, he'll be nine or ten years older, himself."

Sally could remember her father only as a man. Her most vivid collection of him was of an afternoon when he had come to her to the circus.

She had been only seven years old at the time, but she still could remember how he had clung to her with his hot, little hand, in terror, when the crowd had roared—and how he had caught her peanuts and popcorn and a most beautiful pink shiny yellow balloon in it.

And she could remember that he had worn a blue suit and a straw hat with a colored band around it, and had

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensitive mother ever made him take castor oil. Yet his bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with

The Fascination of Speed and Power

At the Ohio State Fair a duplicate of the Twentieth Century Limited and the Southwestern Limited was on display in the grounds.

Thousands went through the train. Over fifty thousand people entered the cab of the locomotive and a veteran engineer explained its operation.

This great power plant was BIG FOUR Engine No. 6507, the latest Pacific type used on fast trains. In working order, this engine with tender, weighs 572,000 lbs. The tender holds 15,000 gallons of water and 16 tons of coal. Engine, with tender, is 90 ft., 11 in. long.

It cost seventy-five thousand dollars.

Since railroads began the locomotive has held a fascination for the public.

Big Four Route

Sally told her. "They're going to mean a lot of extra work."

"Oh, the work will take care of itself," replied Mrs. Jerome, easily. She had always let work do that very thing. Work had been the least of her troubles.

"They'll have to pay their board, too!" Sally declared firmly. "And right on the dot, too, every Saturday night. Otherwise we may just as well pack up and move right into the poor house now!"

Mrs. Jerome looked reproachfully at her with large, round, blinking eyes. "Sally, you talk as if you didn't want your brother here at home," she said sadly. "You talk as if he weren't welcome here."

Then she started up from her arm chair and looked out of the window. "Where they are!" she cried, and the sound of a chugging motor came faintly up from the street.

There were slow footsteps on the stairs outside and Sally's father came walking back into her life.

He was not at all like the father she remembered. There was nothing to even suggest that father.

There was nothing gay and strong and young about him now. He was dressed in a gray suit and his eyes and hair were gray too. He was not nearly so tall as Beau, who towered behind him. And he was quiet—almost timid—in his manner.

"Clara Margaret," he said softly, and actually held out his hand to the woman who had been his wife for almost a quarter of a century. There was no affection—and no lingering resentment—in his manner to her. He was, as the sharp-tongued Mabel remarked later, as polite as a flower-walker.

She winked now at Sally, and shifted her tongue from one cheek to the other. She was enjoying all this, hugely.

"Yes, Papa," Mrs. Jerome, who had colored up like a girl, but had never moved from her place by the window. It was plain that she did not know how to greet this gray, middle-aged man who had been a forceful young husband when he had begged the door of that very flat violently behind him nine years before.

It was Sally who saved the day. She ran across the room and threw her arms around her father's shoulders and kissed his dry, wrinkled cheeks. She tried to keep remembering the day he had taken her to the circus.

"We're so glad you came!" she cried. "And there's some coffee for you! Where's your bag? Put it in Mabel's room. Beau. Your old room, you know."

Talking and laughing, she got them all into the dining room and around the table. She poured coffee and passed food and did her best to get things going. To break the ice.

But a pale smile was set on the face of the man. When Mabel's light laughter sounded mirthless, and Beau looked from his silent father to his silent mother with puzzled, questioning eyes, and evenly spoke.

At half past eleven he and Mabel went home in their temperamental car, and the rest of the family went to bed. Sally kissed her father good night, but Mrs. Jerome did not. And when Sally tucked into her room a half hour later with her glass of warm milk, she was sitting straight up in bed, staring into space.

"He's just like he used to be—hard and cold and mean," she said, as if she were talking to herself. "I'm sorry I sent for him. He took his time about getting here, anyway. And Mabel doesn't need him now."

Then, with a sigh, she took her milk from Sally's hand and picked up her latest novel—"The Princess Dagmar"—from the table beside her wide, deep, soft bed.

"Well, thank goodness, I have you left, Sally," she said. "You'll never leave me, will you?"

Sally's kiss was a promise. "Not unless you want me to, dear."

The next morning Sally was up at 5, like the little pig in the fairy-tale.

For, since she had started working for John Nye, she had been doing her housework in the mornings and evenings—and this morning there was more work than usual.

She set the breakfast table for her father and mother. She filled the coffee pot and set the electric toaster on the sideboard, with the bread beside it under a clean napkin. She made ham sandwiches and rolled them in a damp cloth in the ice-box.

"I'll bring home the things for supper tonight," she wrote on a slip of paper which she slid under the door of her mother's room. "So just get something cold for father's lunch. I've left some ham sandwiches in the ice-box. If you go to the hospital with father, please take Mabel's clean nightgowns to her. They are wrapped up in a newspaper on the table in my room. I'll be home at 6:30. Sally."

But she was not home at 6:30 that night.

For at 6 o'clock, just as she was leaving, John Nye poked his head in at the door of Mr. Peter's little office and asked her to give him some extra time that night.

"I've a new salesman coming on in the morning, and I'll like to get some prospects lined up for him," he explained to her. "So if you could go over some lists that I've made I'd be very—"

"Right away?" Do you want me right away?" asked Sally, impolitely breaking in upon his sentence. She was beginning to strip off her jacket when he answered her.

"Better go and get something to eat first," he advised her. "I've a couple of hours' work piled up in there." He jerked his head in the direction of his office.

"If I were Mabel I'd be asking me out for something to eat," Sally thought, not bitterly, but with a kind of dull unhappiness. If she were blond and sizzling and baby-faced he wouldn't be treating her like an office machine instead of a flesh-and-blood girl who was in love with him.

"Not that I'd go with him, anyway. I wouldn't be disloyal to Mabel," she told herself, as she crammed her hat down upon her hair once more.

"I'd ask you to go to dinner with me," John's voice surprised her. "But I had lunch late today and I'm not very hungry. So I thought I'd go right on with my work."

Sally went past him into the hall. "I'll be right back," she answered, with a tiny nod of her head. "In 15 minutes."

Just Among Us Girls

A woman can wind a man around her finger—and when she does it's usually around the second finger of the left hand.

"They're probably still at the hospital," Sally decided, and hung up the receiver.

The drug store was one of those glorified shops that carry everything from aspirin tablets to sandwiches, served at a long white counter.

Sally looked up on one of the high stools and ordered a mixed chicken sandwich. But when it came she could not eat. She was too filled with excitement, too eager to get back to John Nye's office.

And then, just as she was going out of the store, a happy thought struck her. She would take a couple of sandwiches to John Nye. . . . He had said that he was "not very hungry," but with a man that meant, usually, that he was very hungry indeed.

"I'll take a salmon-sandwich and a Swiss cheese sandwich with me, if you'll wrap them up," said Sally to the white-aproned soda clerk, and carried them out with her into the hush of the downtown streets, always so quiet after the day's roar—so quiet, by comparison as the hushed aisles of a great cathedral or a forest just before a storm. A quiet that is like the soft sound of the great city breathing a sigh after its day's work.

The air was filled with the gray-violet twilight of autumn now, and the shop windows were already lighted up. New fall and winter clothes were on display in them—bats of velvet and satin and felt. Dresses of heavy silk and dark glossy cloth. Shoes that were little masterpieces of leather. All the thousand-and-one things that every woman—every woman, at least, who cares how she looks—longs for incessantly.

Sally looked first at it and then at the purse in her hand. In one pocket of it 10 one-dollar bills were stuffed—all she had left of her week's salary.

"So much for dresses with blue bows," thought Sally, wistfully. "But I wish I had a new hat—tonight, especially."

She couldn't help it. She couldn't help wishing to look nice for John Nye even though he belonged to Mabel, she couldn't help it. For after all, she was only human.

She pulled down her old hat over her starlike blue eyes and went on her way to him.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MADGE FEARS FOR MARY

THERE was something in Philip Veritzen's tone even more than the words of his little speech concerning Mary Harrison's distractions, which turned her cold with fear for the future of Dicky's lovely ambitious young niece.

From Lillian's knowledge of his character, drawn from years of friendship with him, and from his own observations gleaned from the months in which he had been doing the historical research work for his new production, he knew that he could be absolutely merciless to anyone who disappointed him or transgressed the iron-clad rules he laid down for the conduct of his employees, and the rare persons to whom he granted the favor of his dramatic interest.

But it was not guile enough to be feared that his comment held the real cause of the threat against Mary's ambitions which he read into his remark that his "little protégée was having altogether too many distractions for a young woman with ambitions to become the greatest actress of her time." There was something behind the words, and, of course, his thoughts flew at once to the fear Lillian and he cherished—that the great producer knew about it.

The great producer knew about it, his young protégée's escapade as the masked dancer, and was only biding his time to execute the "high justice, the middle and the low" upon her.

Intuitively, however, that explanation failed to satisfy her. There was something else in the phrase "seductive walk-false" which he was giving the group opposite him—something which she could not quite grasp. Of one thing she was certain: There was something about the conduct of the two people to whom she was listening, in Mary's love which seemed to be a mystery, and she did not believe that she was alone in this feeling.

She went into the first dress store that she came to and looked over the fat. But there was no answer.

Jubilee's Partner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDG M. LEWIS

A fella ought to have better sense than to get his nose busted on Saturday. If he has got a set that likes to wash his face and get him ready to go to Sunday school the next morning like I have.

When I woke up my nose didn't hurt at all. I didn't rub it or blow it or anything. So I got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and told him that it was Sunday and we would make the best of it and then I went down and had the tires and stayed around them quite a while, because it was so cool when I went out to empty the ashes, and I guess I wasn't swimming any more this year unless something happens like getting pushed in or something. The bunch don't get around so early on Sunday morning, because there is nothing to do, like going to the pasture or to school or anything.

After I had fed my face and had gotten a pocket full of pancocks to take out to Jubilee and grabbed up as I was going past her and she had a pan of warm water and soap and everything and she got me by the hair and started to scrub and the first swipe she made across my nose I hollered and it began to bleed, and it bled for a long time, and nobody but my mother was sorry for me. Then when she stopped my aunt told me to go to her room and get her brush and comb, so when I went past the window I swiped my mother's bottle of ammonia, and hid it under my arm, and my aunt got an abominable with perfume or something in it in her room, and I emptied the perfume or whatever it was out of her window and put some ammonia in it, and closed it up and took her comb and brush. And it wasn't perfume at all, but medicine, and when she went back with her comb and brush she sprayed her nose with it, and it must of lifted up the root of her head, and they all went running when she hollered, and so did I.

When I got home from Sunday school I found out that my grandfather gave her the laugh for hollering over her medicine, so he sprayed his nose with it, and I am kind of glad I wasn't there, but I would of liked to of been, because I bet a fella don't get a chance to hear those kinds of words every day. Ammonia is awful strong stuff. I smell of it once and it knocked my hat off. I can see that my family want to blame someone but don't know who. I went to school today and was careful not to do anything that would make them blame me for anything. A fella with a father like mine has to be mighty careful.

She sent me a pleading glance, and after a while with the aid of Lillian, to whom I flung one of our old code appeals, I managed to engage not only Mr. Veritzen but Dicky and Miss Lincoln in a animated discussion of a new and startling book we all had read. Carefully edging my chair a bit away from the group and unconsciously pulling another one near it, I looked at Mary and with a murmured word of excuse to her cavaliers, she crossed to me and sat down, holding out her hand to me.

"Do you mind looking at this finger, Auntie Madge?" she asked with apparent anxiety. "I suppose it is in my imagination, but it hurts a bit and I'm wondering if it is swelling."

I bent over it and she lowered her voice to a murmur indistinct to anyone else.

"Oh, Auntie Madge, can't you manage for me to see Mr. Veritzen and tell him about that pretty soon. I'm just sure he knows. Did you see the way he looked at me? Can't you ask him if he could see me tomorrow?"

I put a warning hand on her wrist. "Careful!" I whispered. "It won't be possible to make any appointment with Mr. Veritzen until after your Uncle Dicky goes back Monday. I can see that the time will be filled until then."

Peter's Adventures

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE S. VINCENT

AT THE CRACK OF A TWIG

ALL the baby Possums were so still, the lady could have heard a pin drop. Every pair of bright eyes peered fearfully about, every little ear stood erect to catch the slightest sound; every sharp bewitched little nose was pointed straight into the air to receive any warning the wind might bring.

Just at this moment Peter stepped on a dry twig. Crack! At the sudden sharp sound each little ear took to his legs and in a flash was out of sight. It was almost as though the ground had opened and swallowed them up. Peter peered about him sharply, but couldn't spy a Possum. However, he heard a stirring among the dry leaves behind the log, and he rather guessed some of the youngsters had run to cover there.

Mrs. Possum took a few dazed steps, then down she dropped and lay flat upon the ground. Peter's heart did a back flip. Some dread enemy must be on his way to frighten his friends so dreadfully. Then Peter's thought of something. His heart went right back where it belonged and kept on beating as though nothing had happened.

There was no enemy near. He was sure of it. "Was he himself who had scared the Possums," Peter chuckled.

"One would think you had been shot," Mrs. Possum remarked. Peter, in a loud whisper, "Get up, old lady, and call the children out of hiding, for no trouble threatens any of you. All is safe in the woods."

Mrs. Possum slowly opened one eye and looked cautiously about her.

"How do you know, boy?" she whispered back. "What was that sharp sound? Surely there must have been some stranger at hand to make such a commotion!"

"Nobody stranger than I," chuckled Peter. "I stepped upon a dry twig and broke it in two, and that is what you heard. If you were so afraid of an enemy was coming, why didn't you run? If there had been an enemy on your trail he'd have caught you sure."

Next—"Taken at Tumble!"

Mrs. Possum was laughing to herself. They believe in getting better.

"Any day but that!"

It's exasperating when you don't understand—and embarrassing when you do. Women who have feared of Mabel don't have painful periods.

Mabel is not a narcotic. It acts only on the organs affected. Perfectly safe, but swift. It brings complete comfort in five to seven minutes! No matter how hard a time you've always had, Mabel will dissipate every particle of pain. It is only common sense to use it, for it does nothing to hinder the normal, natural process of menstruation; but makes it painless.

delicious fruit fritters

DEEP FRIED WITHOUT SMOKE OR ODOR

SOME time when you have company for dinner, or when you wish to give your family a delicious treat, serve one of these delightful fruit fritters as an entree.

Deep fried in Crisco they retain all of the delicious, natural fruit flavor and are never greasy. And remember, too, that when you use Crisco in frying you are never troubled with smoke or unpleasant odors in your kitchen. Crisco does not smoke at proper frying temperature.

Lots of Other Good Things, Too

Crisco is by no means limited to frying. I find that with Crisco I can make light, tender cakes, fluffy biscuits, flaky pie crust and lots of other good things too. It is the only shortening and cooking fat I need have in the house.

Apple Fritters

1 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
5 or 6 core apples
Mix and flour, baking powder, sugar and milk. Add milk and well beaten eggs. Mix well. Pare and core apples. Cut in sections. Dip each piece of apple in the batter and fry in deep hot Crisco (340 to 375 degrees F.) until brown. Drain on ungreased paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Pineapple Fritters

Cut pineapple in suitable sized pieces. Follow recipe for Apple Fritters.

Peach or Apricot Fritters

Cut halves of peach or apricot in quarters. Follow recipe for Apple Fritters.

Banana Fritters

Peel bananas. Cut through lengthwise and again in pieces 1 1/2 to 2 inches long. Follow recipe for Apple Fritters.

Orange Fritters

Separate sections of orange. Follow recipe for Apple Fritters.

(All measurements level)

was used by Mrs. George O. Thurn in the recent Star Cooking School

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

BUCYRUS TIES WITH ASHLAND

Both Teams Fail to Make Winning Extra Point After Touchdowns

Bucyrus, Oct. 24—Playing their first home game with Ashland before a large crowd, the Bucyrus High school football team failed to make a touchdown and ended its string of consecutive victories with a tie of 6-6.

Johnson of Ashland broke away on a wide sweeping end run for 35 yards and a touchdown early in the first quarter. The Bucyrus secondary defense was completely taken out of play.

The first half ended 6-0 for Ashland, who completely outplayed the Redskins. The second half showed a remarkable improvement for the Bucyrus football team.

Ungers evened the count when Monnett bucked the oval across from the 5 yard line, but failed to score the winning point when the placekick was blocked.

Coach Winters intends to drive his men hard the coming week in preparation for the Marion next Saturday.

RAILROAD COMPANY SUED FOR DAMAGES

Negligence Charged in Action Growing Out of Collision

Bucyrus, Oct. 24—Clarence Pontius, Saturday filed suit for damages against the Bucyrus Railroad Company for $250 damages alleged to be the result of negligence which caused Pontius' car to be demolished at the Woodlawn crossing on June 15.

Pontius alleges in the petition filed by Attorney A. S. Leuthold that no gates or gate keeper was maintained by the Bucyrus Railroad Company at the crossing and that no signal was given to warn any one of the approach of a train, when his car was struck.

He also alleged that a train resting on a siding at the crossing obstructed the view of any train approaching. He claims that he stopped his car 50 feet from the crossing to listen for trains but that no warning signal was given by the train that struck him.

Bucyrus Army Eleven Takes Small End of 19-6 Score

Bucyrus, Oct. 24—Although scoring more first downs and gaining more yardage by straight football, the Bucyrus Army eleven was unable to stop Mansfield's aerial attack Sunday and lost 19-6.

The Army eleven displayed good football at times but the lack of passing was very evident. In the final period Bucyrus opened up with their aerial attack and completed three long passes, but it was too late in the game to do any damage.

HARRY LOWERY TAKES OWN LIFE

Funeral Services Not Yet Announced for Victim of Suicide

Carey, Oct. 24—No funeral arrangements had been announced yet this morning for Harry Lowery, 41, porcelain worker, who took his life with a shotgun yesterday morning at 7 o'clock at his home five miles east of Carey.

Surviving are the widow, Emily Hall Lowery, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lowery, his sister, Mrs. E. G. Snyder of Carey and Mrs. H. K. Carlin of Norman, Okla., and one brother, George Lowery of Wynonah, Okla.

Mr. Lowery arose before other members of the household, Mrs. Lowery, her mother, Mrs. Anthony Hall and his mother, Sunday morning. He placed his gun in his pocket and went to the kitchen and fired. The report of the gun aroused the others and they found the dead body a few moments later.

No motive has been advanced for the suicide. Mr. Lowery had been in poor health for sometime, but had worked regularly at the Federal Pencil Co. plant here.

GALLON STUDENTS TO PRESENT OPERETTA

Two Casts To Alternate in Three-Act Production in December

Gallon, Oct. 24—A three act operetta is at present being rehearsed by the members of the Gallon High school chorus, and the production of this artistic and novel offering will be given early in December. The chorus is a group of mixed voices and nearly 100 students will take part in the presentation.

R. H. Ehrhart, music instructor of the public schools, is directing the operetta and Theodore Schaefer, popular high school musician, has been chosen as accompanist. The high school orchestra will also assist with the musical numbers.

"The Love Pirates of Hawaii" by Otis M. Carrington, will be the first production this year and members of the cast and choruses are enthusiastic over the possibilities of scoring a hit with their production. Principals and two casts have been selected, the first and second casts will alternate in the final night presentation. Martha Auld and Florence Mosier will alternate with the love which is a part for Lydia Soprano; Flora Mae McKelvey and Vera Haugevald will appear as Miss Primer; and Arthur Limer and Burnett Tennant will vie for honors as the Pirate Chief. Minor parts and choruses have not yet been filled. All those taking leading roles are vocal students of the school's Fine Arts Department and from a musical standpoint, the cast should be successful.

It is the first attempt with an operetta that has been made since 1925, when the United Glee Clubs of the school successfully produced "The Gypsy Boy" under the direction of former musical supervisor, Charles Ruch.

SEEKS $10,000

Ralph K. Pugh Plaintiff in Action Against Estate Administrators

Kenton, Oct. 24—Ralph K. Pugh, Kenton insurance man, has filed suit in the court of common pleas against Joseph W. Lydick and Attorney C. M. Cessna, administrators, with the will annexed, of the estate of P. M. Teeters, deceased, seeking $10,000. A promissory note in which P. M. Teeters is said to have given Pugh on April 15, 1927 for "services and friendship rendered" is the basis of the suit.

When the plaintiff presented a copy of the note to the defendants, the petition states, they refused to pay the amount of $10,000 for which it was made out.

BELLEFONTAINE TO MEET MARYSVILLE

Union County Gridders Preparing for Battle with Fast Logan Outfit

Marysville, Oct. 24—With over half of the 1927 schedule behind them Marysville football fans and gridders are discussing the "spooky" possibilities of next Friday's game with Bellefontaine. While every team met by the locals with the exception of Nelsonville, has been easy going, the Bellefontaine crew is expected to furnish the strongest opposition of the season.

Bellefontaine is taking a similar attitude on the game and has announced that it will be on hand with its high school band and crowd of rooters. The locals, however, are out for revenge, having tasted their only defeat last year at the hands of Bellefontaine on a muddy field.

Coach Kingsmore is taking every precaution to have his men in the best of condition Friday, strengthening the line and straightening out weak spots in the offensive and defensive. Several "mystery" plays which have been spared for Bellefontaine will be let go Friday.

The game may decide the championship of the Trenchum High School Athletic League, of which the other two eleven are members. Logan and Urbana are both weak teams this year, leaving the championship between Bellefontaine and Marysville.

Several Persons Injured In Series Of Accidents

KENTON, Oct. 24—Numerous accidents resulting from varied and unusual causes, were reported from over Kenton and Hardin county during the past week. When "tackled" by a pet dog while running after a football at his home west of here, Billy Talburt, 6, was thrown from a heavy box, sustaining a deep cut on his right neck. He was otherwise bruised about the body in the tumble.

While visiting with his grandparents here, Richard Sherman, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sherman of Marysville, accidentally fell in playing with a group of friends, receiving a fractured collar bone, receiving a fractured collar bone. The injury was not discovered until two days later.

Thrown Against Fence
Mrs. Emma Shilling of near here, is recovering from bruises and shock suffered when a large log, one of several she was attempting to drive from a garden patch, ran into her hurling her against the fence. She was visiting at her son's home when the mishap occurred.

Believed to have stumbled over a log, Mrs. Elizabeth Kahler, 33, mother of Mrs. Albert Fink, Kenton, fell to the floor fracturing her right hip. Her condition is slightly improved. The condition of Mrs. W. L. Sams, Kenton, who fell down the porch steps at her home sustaining a broken collar bone, is improving.

While preparing a luncheon, Miss Ruth Curran, stenographer in the office of O. B. Blue, abstractor, received two badly burned fingers, receiving a fractured collar bone. Miss Curran was arranging the meal in the absence of her mother.

Twists Shoulder
Reaching for an article in the pocket of her automobile, Mrs. William Wallace, south of here, twisted her right arm in such a manner as to dislocate her shoulder. Some years ago, Mrs. Wallace was knocked down by a cow and the shoulder was injured.

Leland Snell, 10, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Snell, Ada, broke his arm just above the elbow while wrestling with a playmate. He received medical treatment at the Lima City Hospital.

S. S. MEET HELD AT MT. GILEAD

Representative H. E. Hill Delivers Principal Address at Final Session

Mt. Gilead, Oct. 24—A great two-day County Sunday School convention held in the Presbyterian Church terminated last night with an address by State Representative H. E. Hill of Marion. The music was furnished by the male chorus of Cardington.

The big meet began Saturday afternoon by a meeting held in the interest of Child Problems of the Sunday School. The principal address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. George Poston. This was followed by a round table discussion of the "Child Problem of the Sunday School" through the "Home" led by Mrs. Paul Maxwell of Cardington. Both and Winford McCabe gave an entertaining number.

Principal address Saturday night on "Youth Problems of the Sunday School." The time was also occupied by a debate between Reverend Miller and Hamill and by a quartet from Thoria. Mrs. Kuntze and Mrs. Gleason of Chesterfield sang a duet.

Rev. J. C. Smith of the Methodist Church spoke Sunday afternoon on the subject of "Making the Adults Christian Through the Sunday School." Reports of the district conventions were given at this time. Numbers were given by the Presbyterian Ladies' Quartet.

At 6:30, Sunday night, the various young people's organizations of the county met in the Presbyterian Church in a group where they were entertained by an address by Reverend Ellis of Cardington.

SHELBY PANTHERS DEFEAT MT. GILEAD

Recovery of Fumbled Ball Gives Winners Game's Lone Touchdown

Mt. Gilead, Oct. 24—The Mt. Gilead Eagles' football team met disaster Friday in a game with the Shelby Panthers on their home ground. The score was 6-0 in favor of the Panthers, who recovered the ball after a Mt. Gilead man had been thrown and injured after running 25 yards with a received punt. Mt. Gilead nearly doubled Shelby in first downs throughout the game. Shelby tried nearly 15 forward passes, only two of which were completed. One of which "were" complete.

As a whole, the game was rather poor, the punts were short and there were several fumbles. The ball was near the goal posts several times but was lost on downs.

A crowd of nearly 200 persons attended.

CHURCHES VARY USUAL ROUTINE

Out-of-Town Speakers Feature Sunday Services at Upper Sandusky

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 24—Many church denominations varied their usual Sunday program with special featuring of out-of-town speakers and rally day services.

At the Methodist Church, the young people in charge of the rally service presented Dr. Stephen K. Mahon, well known speaker from Toledo, who addressed a large audience at the night service. In the morning, combined Sunday School and church services gave the young people opportunity to present their annual rally day program. Features of the entertainment were the welcome address by Dorothy Miner, a solo "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way" by Elizabeth Peters, a piano duet by Mrs. George Denman and Mrs. Fredrick Heiser.

Rev. Rogers Speaker
Another well known speaker was heard at the night service of Trinity Episcopal Mission in the person of Rev. Warren La Rogers, Bishop Cooperator of Northern. Rev. Rogers presented a striking appeal to all his listeners, viewing the Christian life as the most attractive form of living today.

Promotion exercises in the Sunday school department occupied the Sunday school and church hour at the Presbyterian Church with a Rally Day program being given. Helen Newcomer gave the welcome, recitations were given by Thomas Bowman and Janet Olson and an exercise by the primary department and one by the Blue Bird Class completed the interesting entertainment. Rev. Frederick Cromer closed the service with appropriate remarks.

At the night service, Rev. Cromer used as the subject for a stirring sermon, "What Christ Teaches About the Devil and Demons."

Marysville Kiwanians Approve Two Bond Proposals at Meet

Marysville, Oct. 24—The two bond issues, one for $155,000 for a new high school building and the other for $100,000 for a new hospital to be placed before Marysville voters at the coming election, were given a boost at the last meeting of the Marysville Kiwanis Club, when the members of the club voted unanimously in favor of the two issues. Several other Marysville clubs including the Lions' Club, have also fallen in line favoring the projects, which are expected to carry.

STOLEN AUTO IS DESTROYED

Officials Fail to Locate Injured Youth in Kenton Crash

Kenton, Oct. 24—Kenton and Hardin County officials were still unsuccessful today in their search for a youth, apparently 23 years of age, who, though badly injured, disappeared late Saturday after the alleged stolen car he was driving wrecked one mile west of the city and burned up.

After being picked up by a passing motorist, Oren Deewester, the injured had refused to allow his benefactor to take him to the hospital or a physician's office, but forced him to drive eastward beyond the city limits where he disappeared.

Stolen at Game
The Buick sedan totally destroyed by the wreck and fire was the property of Victor Kussbaum, Bucyrus merchant. It was stolen from its parking place while the owner was attending the Ohio Northern-Heidelberg football game during homecoming ceremonies in Ada.

Immediately notifying officials, Deewester led a posse to the spot where the youth alighted from his car. However, a careful search along the highway and adjacent fields failed to reveal his whereabouts.

Refused Medical Aid
It is believed that the alleged thief was traveling at a high rate of speed and as he neared the Ohio Central railroad crossing over the Harding highway, west of here, slammed on the brakes. His car skidded from the highway, sideways a tree and turned over. There was a muffled explosion. The instant driver crawled from the wreckage and started down the highway when overtaken by Deewester.

According to Deewester the youth was bleeding badly from a deep cut above one knee and had his head and face badly bruised and cut. He refused to allow me to take him to a physician or the hospital, but forced me to drive him through the city and eastward to the Grove cemetery where he alighted.

SOCIAL EVENT

Friends Gather at Home Near Marysville for Celebration

Marysville, Oct. 24—One of the largest social gatherings ever held in Union County, took place Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Amrine, north of Marysville. The event was the celebration of one sixty-second anniversary, the first being that of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Amrine and the latter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Amrine. The two anniversaries are two days apart and the two couples have always been neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Loughry were married in Leesburg Township Oct. 23, 1895 and have spent all of their married life on the farm on which they now reside. The same is true of Mr. and Mrs. Amrine, who were married in Delaware County, Oct. 21, 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Loughry are each 84 years of age. Mr. Loughry is 72 and his wife is 73. Both couples are in good health.

Michigan Gets Another Leg On Title; Zuppke Puts In Claim

After Saturday's Game Buckeyes Appear To Be Powerful, Sloppy Team

Chicago's Victory Over Penn Gives Stagg Brighter Outlook; Gopher Takes Revenge on Iowa; Welch Fails To Repeat; Rockne Puts Hoosiers Away

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The business of the Big Ten conference today was to decide whether the Big Ten championship goes to the team that won the title last year or to the team that won the title this year. graduation of Benny Friedman, has another great football team. It proved that Ohio State is the sloppiest powerful club on record. It proved, too, that this fellow, Bob Zuppke, at Illinois is another Houdini.

Northwestern, Dick Hanley's outfit, which had been unbeaten up to Saturday, realized the sting of a one point defeat. Illinois perpetrated this, 7 to 6, in Evanston. The trimming relieved the Purple of any title hopes and boosted Illinois high up among the contenders.

"Tiny" Lewis, prospective All-Western, is another Houdini.

WALKER AND M'FIGUE START TRAINING

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, and Mike McFigue, former light-heavyweight king, were expected to arrive in Chicago today to finish off training for their ten-round battle here Nov. 1.

Certain cocklebirds are said to bury a dog with a dead child, that the dog may guide the child to another world.

Old Man Upset Continues To Stalk Eastern Grids

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Adversity's heavy hand dealt some staggering blows on the football gridiron of the nation on Saturday with the Army and Harvard suffering decisive defeats at the hands of Yale and Dartmouth, respectively, and Cornell going down under a terrific attack by Princeton.

W. and J. Wins. Lafayette was unexpectedly overthrown by Washington and Jefferson for its first defeat in two seasons. Brown was set back by Lebanon Valley. Colgate's surrender to Wabash, an unheralded and unusual conqueror from the middle west, and perhaps more astounding than all others, Amherst's rout by the admittedly weak Wesleyan eleven in the first game of the "Little Three" series.

More in keeping with the accustomed formalities were the victories of Penn State over Syracuse; Pittsburgh over Carnegie, though Pittsburgh did have its goal line sullied for the first time this season; Georgetown over West Virginia; New York University over Rutgers; Columbia over Illinois; and Stanford over the Oregon Aggies.

Not so much did Yale astound the 80,000 spectators in the bowl by its actual victory over the Army as it did by the means whereby it gained that victory. Not until late in the game did the Army get a chance to show its former line attack and then it was too late, for Yale had taken the whip hand early and driven up and down the gridiron with enough might and power to demonstrate decisively that it was the Army's master.

Much has been said of the prowess of Bruce Caldwell, one of the great Yale backs of all time, but without Caldwell, Yale's attack would still have been a machine of power because of the strength of the line. Caldwell and the Yale line shared the honors, Caldwell with his terrific line smashing plunges, his superb punting and drop kicking skill, and his brilliant forward passing; the line by its alertness, its cohesion and its power.

Dartmouth Looks Like 1925. In triumphing over Harvard, Dartmouth bids fair to equal its record of 1925 when it went undefeated through the season to a championship, although it must overthrow this wonderful Yale eleven to achieve that end. The Green smothered the Crimson with a team that crashed through the Harvard line and rode roughshod over its tanks in a remarkable demonstration of power.

Cornell yielded to a wide awake Princeton eleven which uncovered a new Tiger hero in Ed Wittmer. The Tigers were scored on for the first time this season but they more than doubled Cornell's count with an attack that swept through the Cornell line and emerged over it with a bewildering assortment of forward passes.

Pittsburgh, too, continued to exhibit great strength by its one sided victory over Carnegie Tech.

Navy resumed its winning ways by beating the powerful Duke eleven while Georgia Tech, which faces Notre Dame shortly, overthrew North Carolina with ease. Bucknell, an unheralded, unscathed eleven kept its slate clean by whitewashing Gettysburg. Williams, however, fell from that by being defeated by a fast and resourceful Columbia eleven which at last seems to have found itself.

Between Mansfield and Harding. From all appearances at present the N. C. O. league championship will be fought out between Mansfield and Harding. Providing, of course that the dope bucket doesn't spring an unexpected leak and as yet there has not been a dope bucket invented that won't leak on occasion.

After every losing last week Coach Boyer will start intensive drill for Bucyrus tonight. The victory of the reserves over LaCine last Friday proved to Coach Boyer that he has some good football material on the sidelines.

Shelby's 15 to 0 victory over Galion, while it doesn't appreciably improve their title chances does show that the team might prove a nemesis for Harding in the last game of the season. On Nov. 12 while Harding is playing Delaware here, Shelby will be disputing on the gridiron at Mansfield. If the Shelbyites have any title aspirations that game should remove them.

OHIO CONFERENCE Baffles Dopesters

Akron Zippers Stop Muskies; Miami Humbles Oberlin; Wooster Beats Case

Columbus, Oct. 24.—With half of its 1927 football history already recorded the Ohio Conference is still enough of a problem for so-called experts and prognosticators.

Miami, with four straight conference victories, and Wittenberg with two victories have played a consistent brand of ball and have brought the dopesters little cause for worry.

Muskies Tumble. The straw that blistered the camel's back, it is agreed, was the 20 to 12 drubbing given to the New Concord Muskies by the Akron Zippers, when everyone except dived in the wool. The Zippers added a bit of charity to their observations and opted the game would be interesting. On paper Akron seems to have more than an even chance to beat Oberlin, Baldwin-Wallace and Turn to Page 12.

Eagles Close Season By Dropping Game To Galion 4 to 2 At Lincoln Park

Was Free Hitting Contest, with Visitors Garnering 13 and the Locals 11 Hits; Stoner Clouts Homer; 19 Won and Nine Lost in Eagles' Record

In one of the weirdest ball games ever put on exhibition at Lincoln Park, the Marion Eagles closed their 1927 season with a 4-2 defeat at the hands of Galion yesterday afternoon.

Plenty of Hits. It was a free hitting fray, Galion collecting 13 hits while the Eagles pounded the apple for 11 safe hits. Both teams had chances to score every inning but excellent pitching by both hurlers kept the runners stranded. Each of the victors except Ernst got at least one hit, most of them getting a couple. Buckland shone for Marion, collecting three hits for a total of six bases, in five times at bat. Higley got two out of five and each of the remaining seven got one hit except Galt.

The fielding was rather ragged on both sides. Hupp, Galion receiver, caught a nice game covering the whole infield. In the second inning he received credit for Higley's strike out and then on the next play after Buckland had singled he raced to third and put Buckland out on a throw from E. Stull, Rosberry and Baldus played best on the field for Marion. "Chubby" took 10 chances at first without an error while Baldus handled seven chances.

Stoner put the ball over the left field fence in the fourth frame for Galion's first rally and Galion collected five and each of the remaining seven got one hit except Galt.

Saturday's N.C.O. Games Do Not Change Complexion Of League Title Scramble

BY TOM BUCHANAN Sports Editor, The Star

WITH Mansfield smothering Delaware 12 to 0, Bucyrus breaking even with Ashland at 6-6 and Shelby drubbing Galion 15 to 0 in Saturday's North Central Ohio league games the championship race complexion remains practically the same. Harding was idle over the week-end. The Mansfield-Delaware game was a non-conference tilt.

The Big Red of Mansfield was doped to beat Delaware but who would have had nerve enough to predict such an overwhelming score. The immensity score proves two things: First, that Delaware has next to nothing in the way of a football team, and second, that Mansfield is up around the top in N. C. O. league circles. Bucyrus beat Delaware sometime ago to the tune of 55 to 0 and Mansfield put both teams away.

Mansfield is still in the 1000 percent column as is Harding but one of these will drop a notch Nov. 5, if not sooner, when they meet on the fairgrounds.

Next Saturday Bucyrus is here and while it won't be any easy pickling Harding should win by about one touchdown. Providing, of course that the Red and Black gets a 50-50 split on the breaks. If any. In spite of the tie with Ashland Bucyrus is probably a little better football team. It was a 35-yard run by Quarterback Johnson that gave the Black and Gold its score. It will be remembered that it was this same Johnson who galloped 50 yards for touchdowns against Harding the week before. The ball had been in play only two minutes when Johnson checked up its marker against Bucyrus. Bucyrus' games was featured by some flashy running by Monette, quarterback, who collected a touchdown on a 30-yard run.

Shelby's 15 to 0 victory over Galion, while it doesn't appreciably improve their title chances does show that the team might prove a nemesis for Harding in the last game of the season. On Nov. 12 while Harding is playing Delaware here, Shelby will be disputing on the gridiron at Mansfield. If the Shelbyites have any title aspirations that game should remove them.

After every losing last week Coach Boyer will start intensive drill for Bucyrus tonight. The victory of the reserves over LaCine last Friday proved to Coach Boyer that he has some good football material on the sidelines.

BABE RUTH AND GEHRIG PLAY ON PACIFIC COAST

San Francisco, Oct. 24.—Baseball fans of the Bay district today were convinced that Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were entitled to their rating as home run hitters. Each got two homers in two games played yesterday. Gehrig hit a circuit walloper at Oakland in the morning when his team defeated one headed by Ruth, by a score of 6 to 3. Ruth clouted two homers in the afternoon game played here, his team trimming Gehrig's by a score of 15 to 4. Gehrig also crashed out a homer in the second game.

MICHIGAN-CHICAGO TIES FOR HONORS

JOHNNY DUNDEE MEETS TONY CANZONERI TONIGHT

New York, Oct. 24.—Another veteran defying the strength and enthusiasm of youth will enter the boxing ring at Madison Square Garden tonight when Johnny Dundee meets Tony Canzoneri, fighting young featherweight.

Canzoneri is a 2 to 1 favorite. He has every advantage of youth, stamina and speed, and against these Dundee will pit his vast experience gained in hundreds of ring duels.

The fight will be a fifteen-round affair.

DEFIANCE, TOLEDO ARE LEADING CONFERENCE

Bowling Green, O., Oct. 24.—Defiance college and Toledo University lead the Northwestern Ohio football conference today after the Saturday opening as a result of their victories over Bluffton and Findlay colleges. Bowling Green the fifth team in the loop will meet Findlay in the Findlay homecoming next Saturday with Bluffton at Defiance.

As Bluffton lost to Toledo by the score of 4-0, it is expected the Defiance team will show the comparative strength of the three teams, as Defiance won from Findlay 29-0.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 50c and 60c.—Adv.

GOT A NICKEL?

Here's the Greatest Treat in the Whole Smoking World for 5c

Go ahead and doubt it. You can't be blamed. For you've been hearing all your life about 5c cigars that are "really worth more." No doubt you've been disappointed more than once too!

Just the same—a good 5c cigar is possible and Havana Ribbon is its name! Here's the difference: Havana Ribbon sold at a higher price for years. Sold big! And just because it did pile up such volume sales it is now possible to make the price a nickel. A downright good cigar—regardless of price. With all the mellowness and body that comes from ripe tobacco.

Try it. Step into a nearby cigar store—today—and ask for "Havana Ribbon." It will cost you just a nickel, but you'll forget the price the minute that mellow mildness and friendly fragrance start talking to your taste!

Third Attempt of Mrs. Grayson to Fly Atlantic Fails

DECISION OF EXPERT SOUGHT

Another Try May Be Made on Flight Abandoned for Year

Old Orchard, Me., Oct. 21.—After their third unsuccessful attempt to span the Atlantic Ocean to Denmark, the crew of Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane "The Dawn" today were awaiting "Doc" Kincaid, motor expert, upon whose decision rests the possibility of another attempt this year.

Kincaid was expected to reach here by plane from New York today and examine the plane's motor. Failure of one of them to function caused Wilmer Stultz, pilot, to turn back yesterday evening when about 600 miles at sea.

So confident was the motor expert that the plane was at last, well on its way to Europe that as soon as it disappeared from view he left for New York.

Woman Disappointed

If reports can be made quickly, Mrs. Grayson said, another start may be made soon. Consensus of opinions, however, indicate that the flight of "The Dawn" was definitely off until next spring.

Mrs. Grayson's words as she stepped out of her plane for the third time after having endured with the hope of not alighting until European soil had been reached clearly indicated how she felt about the ill-luck that has apparently followed this expedition. She said:

"Isn't it a rotten shame?"

Mrs. Grayson's third attempt to be the first woman to span the Atlantic in a non-stop flight ended after about 10 hours of futile flying. Dark clouds, streaked across the shining wings of the plane which returned, bore testimony that oil had figured in another transatlantic flight failure.

Takenoff beautiful

A cylinder head of the left-hand Wright whirling motor is believed to have cracked under the strain.

"The Dawn," carrying Mrs. Grayson, Stultz and Bruce Goldborough, navigator, headed gracefully to sea at 6:13 a. m. yesterday. The takeoff was beautiful, and to observers it seemed that the plane was at last on its way to Copenhagen.

At about 3 p. m., however, wireless reports from the plane to the Cape Elizabeth Station told of the abandonment of the flight. A message from the plane said:

"We are on our way back to Old Orchard. Engine trouble and fog too heavy to go through with heavy load."

Dump Gasoline

At this time the plane was off Sable Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia. An earlier report had "The Dawn" landing at sea in difficulty and flashing an "S O S".

At 4:10 p. m., "The Dawn" was back from where it had started.

Mrs. Grayson explained that at the point of Sable Island, Stultz noticed white smoke pouring from the motor and oil was streaming along the side and wings of the plane. The fog was also heavy and they then decided to turn back.

Two hundred and sixty gallons of gasoline in the tanks were dumped to lighten the load for the trip back to Old Orchard.

MRS. MARY TRODT, 73, IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Heart Trouble and Bright's Disease Assigned as Cause; Funeral Wednesday

After an illness of two years of organic heart trouble and Bright's disease, Mrs. Mary Trodt, 73, widow of William Trodt, died at 6 o'clock last night at her home, 230 Chestnut-st.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with Rev. J. W. Schilling, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial will be at Galton.

Mrs. Trodt was born near Galton, April 18, 1854, and was the daughter of Vincent and Philippina M. Heiser Melcher, both natives of Germany. She was married to William Trodt, who preceded her in death eight years ago last March, in Bucyrus, Dec. 25, 1871. She was a member of Emanuel Lutheran Church, of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and of the Daughters of Liberty.

Three daughters, Mrs. Philippina Broadhead and Mrs. W. F. Wayne of this city and Mrs. Mamie Zeigler of Mansfield; a brother, W. H. Trodt, of South Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. C. W. Winetrot of Glau's Pass, Ore., survive.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT OHIO CONFERENCE STARTS ON PAGE 11

Wooster for its remaining conference games, though Oberlin or Wooster might not see it this way.

The two Catholic teams of the conference, Dayton and St. Xavier, have each won their only conference game, with Dayton scheduled to clash with Miami on Nov. 12.

Wooster beat Case 23 to 0 Saturday while the best Akron could do with the Scientists was to win by a single touchdown the week before, so it seems reasonable to expect the Wayne County eleven to have an ever chance with Wesleyan, a shade over Western Reserve and more than that with Oberlin in its remaining conference games.

Oberlin lost all the breaks Saturday against Miami, and is due for another rime game Nov. 5 when it meets the Zippers. Case and Mt. Union are Oberlin's remaining foes.

The breaks in the percentage column of the Buckeye Association must come Saturday with Wittenberg playing Miami at Oxford. Figures favor Miami, but the Lutherans have at least a fifty-fifty chance to lead the pack after the tilt.

Two more in the seventh on successive doubles by Rowan and Hipp and a single through the box by "Sailor" Sharrock. Their last run came in the eighth on doubles by Finical and E. Stull.

Marion's first run came in the fifth as a result of Higgins' single and a long triple to right by Buckland. The "Eagles" second and last run was made in the eighth. Conroy reached second as Sharrock dropped his fly in left. Good then skirted to Finical and Sharrock bounced out, E. Stull to A. Stull. Conroy then played as Baldau doubled.

This game closes the season giving the Marion team a record of 19 games won and nine lost for a percentage of .678.

Elston and Basler in New York After Philadelphia Visit

New York, Oct. 21.—Charles Elston and Carl Babler, gathering expositions for George Remus, bootlegger, charged with the murder of Imogene Holmes Remus, his estranged wife, are in New York today after what Elston described as a very successful visit to Philadelphia.

Today they will interview Representative P. H. La Guardia of Harlem, Morris Sweetwood, Mrs. Pauline Sweetwood, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kessler, the latter four business associates of Remus, and two "surprise" witnesses. He says Remus expects to trace the activities of Mrs. Remus shortly before his release from Atlanta Penitentiary. He claims she was trying to cover up an affair with Franklin Dodge, department of justice agent, and to conceal Remus' fortune, which had been left in her care.

TRIAL CONTINUES

Chicago Library Head To Help Stamp Out "British Influence"

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Mayor William Hale Thompson's private war against Great Britain continued to burn on four definite fronts today. With Napoleonic vigor, Chicago's cowboy mayor stalked at the head of his mythical legions and aimed straight for the lion's jaws.

His campaign to "rid Chicago's schools and libraries of British propaganda" developed a series of interesting new angles today.

Carl B. Rosen, head of the Chicago Public Library and president of the American Library Association, announced he would give Mayor Thompson every assistance in his drive to purge the library of unpatriotic texts.

The trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools, who accused of furthering pro-British influence in the schools, will be resumed today with Congressman John J. Gorman in the role of chief prosecution witness.

Auto-Intoxication Doomed at Last

Source of man-killing diseases yields to new method of internal bathing

Auto-intoxication—the almost universal condition of self-poisoning arising from the retention of decaying fecal matter in the lower bowel—will soon no longer take its astounding toll of human life and happiness, according to recent disclosures of medical science.

That it is the commonest cause of headaches, dizzy spells, depression, nervous diarrhoea, halitosis, etc., and a frequent cause of nearly every deadly disease from typhoid fever to cancer is brought out by fifty world-leading medical authorities in "Civilization's Greatest Menace," an amazing booklet published in support of Hunt's Internal Bath.

This remarkable device completely ends auto-intoxication and constipation by keeping the lower bowel washed clean. See the Bath on display and at the same time ask for free copy of this important booklet at

MASS MEETING OPENS SCHOOL

100 Students Register for Training Course at Trinity Church

Approximately 100 registrations from the three Marion Baptist Churches, Trinity, First Memorial and Emmanuel, as well as other churches of the denomination in Marion County have been made for the Marion Baptist Leadership Training School which opened yesterday afternoon at Trinity Church with a general mass meeting.

Dr. Schlan L. Roberts, director of Leadership Training for the American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia, was the speaker for the occasion, talking on the subject, "The Church That Teaches Reaches."

The school, to be conducted each night this week, Monday to Friday inclusive, at Trinity Church, is open to persons of all denominations. Sunday School teachers and officers being especially urged to attend. Classes open at 7 o'clock each night, with four fifty-minute periods of class work. Successful completion of the lesson course will be rewarded with a Training School Certificate for one unit of credit on the Standard Leadership Training Course.

The class on "Principles of Teaching" will be taught by Dr. Roberts; a class on "The Church" by Rev. A. B. Withers, director of Religious Education for the West Virginia General Baptist Association, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Wilson A. Holmes, Granville, director of Young people's work for the Ohio Baptist Convention will teach a class on "Young People's Organization and Methods." Miss Nellie M. Dunham, state director of Children's Work for the Ohio Baptist Convention will conduct a class on "Junior Materials and Methods."

Sunday morning Reverend Withers spoke at Trinity Church concerning evangelism in the church school and at the same hour Miss Dunham spoke at the regular service at First Memorial Church. At night, Dr. Roberts spoke at First Memorial Church, Reverend Withers at Emmanuel and Mr. Holmes at Trinity.

PLEADS GUILTY TO FIGHTING CHARGE

John Bacher, Willard, Given Suspended Fine by Judge Martin

John Bacher, 25, Willard, was given a suspended fine of $10 and costs by Judge Martin in municipal court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to fighting. Bacher was arrested on N. Main-st. at 10 o'clock Saturday night after, according to his story told the court this morning, he had engaged in a fight with the driver of an automobile, known to Bacher by the name of White who had disappeared when the police arrived.

Bacher said White had driven his machine into a car belonging to him and in an argument which followed regarding the settlement for repairs, the fight started.

ATTEMPTED THEFT FOILED AT PROSPECT

Alleged Burglar Put to Flight When Elevator Manager Returns

Prospect, Oct. 21.—An attempted burglary on the Prospect Farmers Exchange, was foiled here Saturday night at about 10 o'clock.

Arthur Heating, the manager, accompanied by Bert Pisk was returning display products, which had been shown at the Community Fair held at the High School Building, to the elevator. They stopped their automobile in front of the elevator, and started toward the front entrance, when suddenly a man in his shirt sleeves dashed out of the office door and fled in the darkness.

The burglar had cowered the office by breaking the glass in the door and reaching in and unlocking the door. He left no clear other than a couple of slide hammers and chisels. He had succeeded in battering off the combination to the safe, but the safe had not been opened.

While the office had been ransacked, nothing was found missing.

A man can travel enough to become almost indifferent to annoyances. It is a sure sign of sophistication.

An interesting study would be that of how a man who is a failure might have been a success.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

TWO APPEALS ARE OVERRULED

Verdicts of Common Pleas Court Affirmed by District Tribunal

Verdicts of the Marion County court of common pleas in two cases have been affirmed by the district court of appeals as the outcome of hearings held before the appellate tribunal in Lima on Oct. 4. Notice of the court of appeals rulings, signed by Presiding Judge Phil M. Crow and Associate Judges C. L. Justice and Kent W. Hughes, was received by the local clerk of courts today.

The cases decided were Clareld W. Parratt against Holden Corbin and H. O. Toms, trustee in bankruptcy, against H. DeLong and others.

Outcome of Accident
The Parratt-Corbin case was the outcome of an automobile collision, the action starting originally in a local justice of the peace court. Parratt was awarded damages there. The case was taken to the court of common pleas, where it was decided that neither litigant was entitled to damages, evidence having shown that negligence on the part of both had caused the automobile accident. This was also the opinion of the court of appeals, where no error was found in the action of the county court.

The Toms-DeLong suit resulted from a controversy over a claim for $210.20 held by W. P. King, former proprietor of the Union Mills at Prospect. This was the amount of a check given King by the American Beauty Baking Co. King received the amount and was later required to make refund when the bank refused to honor the check.

Check Claimed
Shortly afterward King went into bankruptcy and Toms, appointed as his trustee, claimed the amount of the check for distribution among the creditors.

The court of common pleas ruled that the check was not a part of the bankrupt's estate and consequently belonged to him personally. The court of appeals upheld this ruling.

Five other Marion County cases were heard by the court of appeals on the same day that these two came up for review. Rulings have not been announced in the remaining five.

Alimony Plague of Nation, Declares Head of "Protective" Group With 1,100 Members

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—"Alimony is the plague of the country. There are only two ways to beat it: have oodles of money or die."

Speaking feelingly and with deep conviction, John G. Gastinger, an authority on alimony, made these remarks in an interview today. He is head of the Alimony Payers' Protective Association, composed of men who believe they get a raw deal from Dan Cupids and the courts.

Tonight they will hold a public meeting in town hall to arrange plans for their campaign against designing women. Their purpose, Gastinger said, is "to create public sentiment, promote legislation and aid in litigation to stop 'gold diggers,' crooked attorneys, perjurors, 'framing' detective agencies, and politically controlled judges from profligating on their victims." Their organization has a membership of 1,100 and is growing.

Eats and Sleeps Alimony

"I eat, sleep and drink alimony," said Gastinger, who declared he lost a $1,000,000 grain business defending 41 pieces of litigation brought by his wife, Henrietta Schreiber Gastinger.

He has paid $12,400 alimony in the last four years; has been arrested 11 times because of differences with his wife, and has served 11 months in jail for refusing to make certain payments of alimony.

"All over the country there are thousands of men in the same boat as we are—victims of designing wives," said Gastinger.

"But we are organizing against them and will win out in the end."

FIRST AID EXHIBIT SCHEDULE IS FIXED

Police and Firemen To Witness Special Demonstrations on Tuesday

Members of the police and fire departments and employees of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Co., and possibly those of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., will be given instructions in life saving and prevention of accidents by experts accompanying the Red Cross crew now in the city, at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, against the clock in the afternoon.

The schedule was announced by Vice Chief P. J. McFarland this morning. Three demonstrations in addition to those announced by Miss Mina Dougherty, secretary of the Marion County Chapter of the Red Cross, completes the schedule up until Wednesday noon.

Whether or not there will be any demonstrations Wednesday afternoon has not been determined.

Near Roundhouse
The car which is being sponsored by the Erie railroad, arrived in this city Saturday night, and was placed near the Erie roundhouse in order that it might be convenient for employees of the railroad company, who will attend a meeting between 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The program of lectures opened this morning when a visit was made to St. Mary's School from 10 to 11 o'clock. On Tuesday the Red Cross crew will visit the Vernon Heights school building at 8:15 and at 12:45 o'clock, will give a similar demonstration at Harding High School to two classes, one composed of girls and the other of boys.

The schedule as announced today will close with a lecture to be given at the Central Junior high school Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

DIG UP OLD LAW

Ruth Snyder's Attorneys Seeking New Trial Today

Albany, Oct. 21.—Attorneys for Ruth Snyder, comely schoolgirl murderer, will use an English law 300 years old as authority for a new trial they were to ask for today in the court of appeals.

Edgar Hazleton, who defended the woman at her trial before Supreme Court Justice Sutherland for the murder of her husband, will contend she should not have been tried jointly with Henry Judd Gray. Hazleton says the double trial was against the provisions of the Baumes Law.

A plea for a new trial on similar grounds will be made at the same time by Gray's lawyers. Their ground is that he was emotionally insane on the night he killed his sweetheart's husband, Albert Snyder.

Samuel L. Miller, attorney for Gray, conferred with his client last week in the deathhouse and read to him a brief on the logic of which his life depends. Gray told him, according to Miller, that he felt confident of escaping the chair.

SAYS UNITY IS CHURCH NEED

Rev. Warren Lincoln Rogers Delivers Sermon at St.
Paul's Episcopal Church

"Our Lord's wish for His church is its unity, its oneness," said Rev. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D., of Detroit, bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Ohio in the Episcopal Church, in a splendid sermon on the subject, "Church Unity," at an exceptionally well attended service yesterday morning at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Bishop Rogers also impressively administered the rite of confirmation to a class of ten candidates at that time.

"The unity of Christendom was the wish expressed by Christ in numerous times," Bishop Rogers continued. "It is not a question of tradition but of what Jesus Christ wants." We are gradually awakening to the truth that the whole of Christendom is sectarian, is divided into groups, each particular sect cherishing the customs which have come down to them through the ages more than the wish of the Lord-unity of the church.

States Belief
Bishop Rogers stated his belief that "it is not the clergy of the various churches who prevent unity of religious belief, but the great mass of the people through their inertia, conservatism, sensitiveness, a complete disregarding of the teaching of all churches that all baptized are members of Christ's body."

"Church unity may be conceived, not by choice of a common denominator for all faith, but by belief in one holy, catholic and apostolic church," Bishop Rogers said in closing, "by combining the good that is in all churches into one great religious faith."

A beautiful vocal selection was the duet, "Lead Kindly Light," with music by Riedemann, sung by Miss Crystal Orr and Miss Frances Irwin.

Members of the confirmation class were Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Parker W. Kerr, Mrs. E. Hoffmann, Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. S. T. Ward, Miss Benah Hammond and Mary Katherine Clark and William Anderson.
